Benamidar.

——O. 1, R. 1—Benamidar.

A person who is an avowed agent or a benamidar for another in a transaction need not be joined in a suit in respect of such transaction. (Twomey, J.) MAUNG BYA v. MAUNG SAN THU. 10 I.C. 779=4 Bur. L.T. 74.

Co-mortgagees.

——O. 1, R. 1—Co-mortgagees—Suit for Sale by one—Others refusing to join, to be added as defts.—Form of decree to be passed.

Where a property is mortgaged to two persons as tenants in common and there is no covenant to repay each separately a moiety of the amount, the right of either mortgagee who desires to realise, failing the consent of his co-mortgagee, is to sue for a mortgage decree in respect of the whole sum secured, joining his co-mortgagee as a deft. In such a case the decree should provide for all necessary accounts and payment, except that there can be no judgment for a sum of money entered as between the mortgagee-deft. and the mortgagor. (Lord Buckmaster.) SUNITABALA v. DHARA SUNDARI. 46 I.A. 272=37 M.L.J. 483=17 A.L.J. 997=(1919) M.W.N. 821=22 Bom. L.R. 1=24 C.W.N. 297=53 I.C. 131=11 L.W. 227 (P.C.).

Co-plaintiffs.

——O. 1, R. 1—Co-plaintiffs—Joint appeal by plaintiff and defendant No. 2 against defendant No. 1, maintainable.

The trial Court dismissed the suit as against defendant No. 1 but decreed the claim in full as against the former defendant No. 2 on the ground that he had admitted the receipt of the consideration and had not contested the plaintiff's claim. The plaintiff and the defendant No. 2 preferred a joint appeal against this decree. Held that the rule contained in O. 1, R. 1, applies to appeals also and the joint appeal is maintainable. (Campbell and Motisagar, JJ.) BULAQI MAL v. ABDUL RAHIM. 75 I.C. 950=1923 Lah. 638.

——O. 1, R. 1—Co-plaintiffs—Alternative claims.

Suits by different sets of plffs. claiming in the alternative is maintainable provided there is a common question of law or fact. (Rattigan and Shah Din, JJ.) RUKMAN DEBI v. SHILE DEBI. 10 P.R. 1916=69 P.L.R. 1917=32 I.C. 526=204 P.W.R. 1915.

——O. 1, R. 1—Co-plaintiffs—Death of one—Widow brought on record—Widow's right time barred—Decree in favour of other if can be given.

Where in a suit by the members of a joint family for recovery of debt, one of the plffs.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 1, R. 1—Co-plaintiffs.

died and his widow was brought on record but the rights of the widow were declared to be time-barred in another litigation, a decree cannot be passed in favour of the surviving plffs. alone without the widow's name being struck off; and a joint decree should be passed in favour of the widow also allowing the parties to adjust their claims separately. 15 B. 145, rel. on. (Johnstone and Ratligan, JJ.) NICHALDEVI v. KISHOR CHAND.
51 P.R 1912 = 13 I C. 564 = 139 P.W.R. 1912.

———O. 1, Rr. 1 and 3—Co-plaintiffs—Different causes of action—Joinder of—All defendants not interested in relief—Effect of.

The effect of the change of language of O. 1, Rr. 1 and 3 of the new C. P. Code is to permit different causes of action to be joined even in respect of several plaintiffs or defendants provided they satisfy the conditions of O. 1, R. 1 or O. 1, R 3 as the case may be. (Ramesam, J.) ALLU RAMALINGIER v. SUBRAMANIA PILLAI, 32 M L.T. (H C) 46 = 17 L.W. 25 = 69 I.C. 402 = 1923 Mad. 331 (2).

———O. 1, Rr. 1 and 2—Co-plaintiffs—Alternative relief—Suit by two sets of plaintiffs.

Where the plffs. 1 and 2 claimed the entire subject-matter and their sisters plffs. 3 and 4 claimed a portion of the subject-matter of the suit in a certain contingency and the suit was prayed on the ground that the defendant was unlawfully detaining the moneys due to the plaintiffs. Held, that the suit was not bad for misjoinder of parties and causes of action. The right to relief claimed was in respect of or arose out of the same act (i.e.), the act of the unlawful detention of the moneys by the defendant. The right to relief was alleged to exist in the alternative in the first or second set of plffs. in regard to a portion of such relief. There was a common question of fact to be tried and decided, the unlawful withholding of the moneys. The case therefore fell within O. 1, Rr. 1 and 2, C. P. Code. (Venkatasubba Rao, J.) VELAPPA NADAR v. CHIDAMBARA NADAR. 43 M.L J. 277 = 16 L W. 186 = (1922) M.W.N. 316 = 70 I.C. 684 = 1922 Mad. 174.

———O. 1, R. 1—Co-plaintiffs — Rival claims.

The Code does not warrant the joinder of rival claimants as plffs. where each of them denies the right of the other. Each plff. should be in harmony with his co-plff. (Stanyon, A.J.C.) AMBADASS v. PANDU. 57 I.C. 784.

———O 1, Rr. 1 and 9—Co-plaintiffs—Dismissal of suit on plea not raised.

Where the deft. raises no objection to the frame of the suit on the ground of non-joinder of a lessor as co-plff. the Court should not dismiss the suit on that ground but should raise an issue for plff. to meet or to amend the plaint. (Kanhaiya Lal, A.J.C.) PANDIT KEDAR NATH v. TULSHI. 21 I.C. 182.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 1, R. 1—Co-sharer.

———O. 1, Rr. 1 and 3—Co-plaintiffs—Causes of action.

The claim of the plaintiff No. 1 was based upon an agreement alleged to have been entered into by and between the defendants Nos. 3 and 20 and himself for sale of a land and colliery. The claim of the plaintiff No. 2 was based upon the purchase of September 1919 from the defendants Nos. 10 to 20. The plaintiff No. 1 had absolutely nothing to do with the claim of the plaintiff No. 2 so far as the possession and partition of the plaintiff No. 2's share was concerned. Similarly the plaintiff No. 2 has no concern with the relief claimed by the plaintiff No. 1. If the two plaintiffs had brought the suits separately there would not be any question of law or fact which would be common to the suits. The rights to the reliefs claimed by the two plaintiffs did not arise out of the same act or transaction, or series of acts or transactions. Held that the joinder of the two plaintiffs and the causes of action alleged by them was not authorised by any law or principle (Mullick and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) RAMJAS AGARWALLA v. LINTON MOLESWORTH AND CO., LTD. 73 I.C. 71 = 1923 P. 411.

Co-sharer.

———O. 1, R. 1—Co-sharer landlords.

The co-sharer landlords can sue the tenants collectively even if they collect rent separately and the rent refers to different periods (Holmwood and Teunon, JJ.) BHOLANATH v. BELOHAMBER. 10 I.C. 891 = 14 C.L.J. 373

———O. 1, R. 1—Co-sharer landlords—Suit against trespassers for injunction.

A co-owner of immoveable property can sue for injunction against intending trespassers without joining the other co-owners as parties if he was in sole possession when the trespass was threatened and the suit was brought. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Bakewell, JJ.) SELAMBAYI v. SANGU PANDITHAN.
35 I.C. 147 = 3 L.W. 842.

———O. 1, Rr. 1 and 8—Co-sharer landlords—Rent suit.

Two out of five trustees of temple properties, can sue the tenants of the property for rent; the suit is not bad for misjoinder. (Wallis, C.J. and Phillips, J.) PONNAMBALA PILLAI v. MUTHU CHETTIAR. (1916) 1 M.W N. 181 = 33 I.C. 52 = 30 M.L.J. 619.

———O. 1, R. 1—Co-sharer landlords—Suit for profits from lambardar.

No suit against a lambardar for accounts in respect of one item of village property by one of the co-sharers interested in a portion of the village is maintainable unless all the other persons jointly interested are joined either as plffs. or as defts. (Mitra, Offg. J.C.) HARIDAS CHATTERJEE v. GAHENABAI.
66 I.C. 761.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 1, R. 1—Co-sharer.

———O. 1, R. 1—Co-sharer landlords—Declaration of right of tenant.

A suit by the owner of one half of the village to declare that the deft. is neither a superior nor an inferior proprietor, is good, if the mortgagee in possession of the remaining half, is impleaded as a deft. in the case. (Lindsay, J.C. and Stuart, A.J.C.) RAM AUTAR v. ABDUL HASAN KHAN.
28 I.C. 807=2 O.L.J. 181.

———O. 1, Rr. 1 and 9—Co-sharers landlords.

In a suit for profits for jerait land held by defts. in addition to their shares, all co-sharers are necessary parties. (Chamier, C.J. and Kingsford and Sharfuddin, JJ.) RAM ASRAY SINGH v. SHEONANDAN SINGH.
1 Pat L.J. 573=1 Pat. L.W. 35=
35 I.C. 868=(1917) Pat. 21 (F.B.).

Easement Suit.

———O. 1, R. 1—Easement suit — Minor defendants not represented—Suit, dismissal of.

Where one of the defendants in a suit for a declaration of a right of way is a minor and is not represented in the suit, the suit ought to be dismissed as no effective decree can be made in the absence of one of the persons jointly interested in the alleged servient tenement. (Chatterjea and Panton, JJ.) SADHU CHARAN v. INDRA MOHUN MISTARI, 64 I.C. 90.

———O. 1, R. 1—Easement suit—Necessary parties—Suit for a declaration of right of way.

A person having a right of way to his land over successive tenements is, in case of an obstruction to his right caused by one of servient owners only, not required to join all the servient owners as parties to a suit but he might sue only the obstructing owner to declare his right of way. (Chatterjee, J.) MADAN MOHAN v. SASHI BHUSAN. 31 I.C. 849=
19 C.W.N. 1211.

Joint Family.

———O. 1, R. 1—Joint family—Suit by manager—Other members not necessary parties.

Where the deft. passed a promissory note in favour of plff. who was the eldest member of the joint family for money due to the joint family and the plff. sued as the manager, held, that as the deft. dealt with the plff. alone though he knew that the loan was from joint family funds the other members of the family will not be necessary parties. 36 All. 383 P.C. and 33 All. 272 P.C., Expl. Per Wallis, C.J. and Srinivasal Aiyangar, J. and Abdur Rahim, J., dissenting.) In a suit for specific performance of a contract by a member of an undivided Hindu family to sell his share, other members of the family cannot be joined as defts. merely with a view to obtaining partition and possession of the alleged vendor's share as against them unless a fraudulent partition, allotting to the others the property agreed to be sold is alleged when the others may be treated as subsequent transferees with notice and would consequently be proper parties to the suit. The right to sue for partition does not arise till after the legal title is transferred. Per Srinivasa Aiyangar, J.—If there was an existing cause of action for partition on the date of the suit, the question whether the two causes of action, the one for specific performance and the other for partition and possession can be joined in one suit, would depend not only on the provisions of O. 1, Rr. 3 and 5 which primarily regulate the joinder of parties but also of O. 2, Rr. 3 and 4 which provide for joinder of causes of action. By Division Bench, Per Oldfield and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ. A purchaser of a specified portion of joint family property is entitled to a conveyance by that member of the family of that item and such conveyance entitles him to demand a partition of the family properties and entitles him either to the specified property or to its equivalent from other properties falling to the share of that member. Where a plff. is directed to amend his plaint and plff. fails to obey, the plaint should not be rejected, but the court itself should exercise its powers under O. 6, Rr. 16 and 17 to strike and amend all matters which tend to prejudice, embarrass or delay the fair trial of the suit and in such manner and on such terms as may be just. Communal Right and Property.

——O. 1, R. 8—Communal rights—Representative capacity—Consent.

Where there were two factions in a community and members of one, sued on behalf of the other faction, rules of equity and good conscience forbid the inference, that the consent of members of a community obtained privately after the institution of a suit purporting to be on their behalf, is on the same level, as the open casting of votes at a public meeting. ——O. 1, R. 8—Communal property—Members of a Community—Suit for declaration that property is waqf property.

It is competent to certain persons alleging themselves to be members of the Shia community to institute a suit for a declaration that certain property in the possession of the defendants is waqf property over which the defendants had no proprietary right. To such a suit the sanction of the court under O. 1, R. 8, C.P.C., is not required. 7 All. 188; 32 All. 631: 24 Cal. 385; 35 All. 197, Ref. (Kanhaiya Lal, J.C. and Daniels, A.J.C.) ——O. 1, R. 8—Communal property—Waqf—Right of beneficiaries to sue—Remedies open to worshippers.

A beneficiary of a trust in respect of a Muhammadan waqf interested in the maintenance of a mosque or other charitable institution may, without having recourse to the provisions of Rule 8, Order 1, Civil Procedure Code and without suing in a representative capacity on behalf of the other beneficiaries, sue for recovery of possession of property wrongfully alienated by the trustee and for the incidental declaration that the subject of trust cannot be alienated. The trust property vests in God and the right of a Muhammadan who is entitled to use a mosque to bring a suit for the recovery of property belonging to it is comparable to a right of suit in respect of a private road which many persons have a right to use. Every Musalman who derives any benefit from such a waqf is entitled to maintain an action against the mutwalli to establish his right thereto or against a trespasser to recover any portion of the waqf property which has been misappropriated, without joining any other person who may participate with him in the benefit. It is clear that if the mutwalli himself is the offender or if he is unwilling to act, the beneficiary must have the power to recover the property. (Mullick and Ross, JJ). ——O. 1, R. 8—Communal property—Dedication to temple by community—Arpointment of pujari*—Claim of private right—Decree, form of.*

When land is bought and dedicated to a temple by a community and is conveyed to a person as pujari, the members of the community can sue the pujari or his heir if he attempts to set up his own title thereto, for a declaration that the property belongs to them. In such suit the proper decree will be to declare the property to be a public, religious and charitable trust and that the defts. had no title thereto but he is a mere trespasser and to restrain the defts. from interfering with the property; decree for the removal of the pujari from his office cannot be granted. Leave to file a suit may be granted on behalf of a whole community or body of persons, though some persons object to it. Leave to file a representative suit cannot be granted if the only relief asked for is damages, but if damages are coupled with other reliefs, then leave may be granted, provided the damages are not claimed in a representative capacity but by each individual. Addition of Parties.

——O. 1, Rr. 9 and 10—Addition of parties.

Rules 9 and 10 of O. 1 should be construed together. The words "questions involved in the suit" in O. 1, R. 10 do not mean all claims which may possibly be put forward by anybody to the property involved in the suit. Where a court directs the addition of parties under O. 1, R. 10, the plff. must obey the order of Court, and cannot proceed with the suit as originally constituted. (Srinivasa Aiyangar, J.) ——O. 1, Rr. 9 and 10—Addition of parties—Necessary and proper parties—Distinction between limitation.

The court cannot, by its decree, affect the rights of those who are not parties to the suit. If therefore no decree can be passed without affecting the rights of absent parties, the suit cannot proceed in their absence and should be dismissed. If however the rights of the parties actually before it can be determined in the suit bearing the rights and interests of others unaffected, there is no reason why, even if other parties might properly have been added, the Court should not determine the matters in controversy between the parties actually present. There is a distinction between necessary and proper parties to a suit. Two conditions must be satisfied in order that a defendant may be considered a necessary party, namely, first, there must be a right to some relief against him in respect of the matter involved in the suit, and secondly, his presence is necessary in order to effectually and completely adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit. 16 C.L.J. 358, Rel. If a necessary party is not on record the proper course is to apply to have him joined. If he is not brought on record or if, when brought on record the suit as against him is barred, the suit will be dismissed. Non-joi nder.

———O. 1, R. 9—Non-joinder.

O. 1, R. 9, provides that no suit shall be defeated by reason of non-joinder of parties and the court may, in every suit, deal with the matter in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it. The notion that a decree-holder can seize property which belongs to a stranger and hold it by reason, for example, of the fact that one of his judgment-debtors is keeping out of the way so as to prevent any possibility of service being effected upon him in the suit after an order of dismissal of the claim by the execution court, is so contrary to one's sense of justice, that one would decline to accept it as being the law. ———O. 1, R. 9—Non-joinder—Test of—Court not to travel beyond claim made in the suit.

In determining the question of non-joinder the court must confine itself to the claim before it. The present deft. No. 2, had filed a suit against P. in which he obtained a decree against him. At that time the defence was that the present deft. No. 1 had really paid rent to H. which was then claimed as being payable to P. but the defence was not believed and a decree was passed in favour of H. Thereafter the present plaintiff P. and his daughter, the mulgenidars of a Dewasthan, filed the present suit in the same court to recover the rent that would be payable by deft. No. 1 to them. The court found that the rent was due by deft. No. 1 to the plaintiffs and passed a decree against him. But as it appeared from the evidence that as a matter of fact deft. No. 1 paid this amount previously to H, the court directed H to be joined as defendant No. 2 and after impleading him as a deft. the court held that deft. No. 1 had paid the rent to deft. No. 2, and the ultimate decree was passed by the court in favour of deft. No. 1 against deft. No. 2. Held that the procedure of the lower court was irregular: that the only question appropriate to the suit was whether deft. No. 1 was liable for the amount claimed by the plaintiffs; and that the questions as between deft. No. 1 and deft. No 2 were not appropriate to the suit. (Shah, A.C.J. and Crump, J.) Partition Suit.

——O. 1, R. 9—Partition Suit—Misjoinder—Prejudice to deft.

A right to the partition of a residuary Mahal, and a right to the division of a part of a taluq, which was formerly incapable of partition, are different causes of action and where the parties concerned in a claim under the first right are less numerous than those concerned in the second one, a suit against them is bad for misjoinder of parties and causes of action. But that fact alone would not be enough to set aside the decree in the suit particularly when the misjoinder has not prejudiced the deft. (Stephen and Chatterjee, JJ.) SARODA PROSAD ROY v. KAILASH BASHINI GUHA.

——O. 1, R. 9—Partition suit—Grandsons not necessary but proper parties.

There is a distinction between the non-joinder of proper persons but not necessary parties and nonjoinder of parties whose presence is essential. In a suit for partition in a joint Hindu family, the grandsons are not necessary parties and are represented by their own father. At the same time, they may be proper parties and on an appeal, the appellate Court can direct the lower Court to bring them on record and give them separate allotments if they so desire. Rejection of Plaint.

——O. 1, R. 9 and O. 7, R. 10—Rejection of plaint—Misjoinder of parties and causes of action.

Where there is a misjoinder of either plffs. or causes of action, the proper course is to return the plaint for amendment, and not to reject it. In the latter case the order is appealable. O. 1, R. 2 and O. 2, R. 6, C.P.C., merely refer to procedure, and do note apply when there is misjoinder of either plffs. or causes of action. (Parlett, J.) KRISHNAPPA CHETTY v. MAUNG HMAN.

——O. 1, R. 9—Rent suit—Mortgagee if a necessary party to a rent suit.

The dismissal of a suit, for arrears of rent on the ground that the mortgagee from the tenant of an occupancy holding is not made a party, is a gross and palpable error of law which vitiates the decision. A person who would be represented by a party on the record and bound by the decision against that party is entitled to be impleaded under O. 1, R. 10, Cl. (2), C. P. Code, to protect his interests. The plaintiff, claiming to be the son of an adopted son of S, the last male owner of the suit property, sued for the recovery of possession of the same from 1st defendant, the widow of the last male owner. Plaintiff's case was that his father had been adopted by the 1st defendant, and that he (plaintiff) had been unlawfully excluded from the plaint properties by the 1st defendant on account of an invalid agreement between her and the 2nd defendant. Certain persons, claiming to be the nearest reversioners to the last male owner, applied to be made defendants in the suit and were made defendants by the Court below. One question, and probably the most important question, in the suit was whether the plaintiff's father's adoption to the last male owner was true and valid. Held, that the presence of the nearest reversioners to the last male owner before the Court was necessary in order to enable the Court effectually and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved in the suit, and that the Court below was competent to make them defendants. ——O. 1, R. 10—Addition of parties—Preliminary decree passed in the case—Transferee before suit—Addition of.

O. 1, R. 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure gives wide powers to the Court at any stage of the proceedings to direct that the name of any person who ought to have been joined, or whose presence before the Court may be materially necessary in order to enable the Court to effectively and completely adjudicate upon the questions in issue, may be added. But that power can ordinarily be exercised only in proceedings not concluded by a decree, unless the person to be added is a subsequent transferee. In a suit on a mortgage after the preliminary decree had been passed, a person who is alleged to be interested cannot be impleaded at such a late stage. Scope of O. 1, R. 10 considered. The law gives a wide discretion to add as a party to a proceeding a person interested in it, so as to affect his prospective rights but not with retrospective effect. O 2, R. 2 of the C. P. Plff. sued on promissory notes executed by deft. on a settlement of accounts but the action failed owing to a material alteration in the notes. He subsequently sued to recover the consideration for which the notes had been given. Held, that though the claims arose in

———O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Different—Buddhist law—Suit for divorce on misconduct—Subsequent suit for partition—Maintainability.

Ss. 42 and 43 of the C.P. Code of 1882 (O. 2, R. 2) are aimed against a multiplicity of suits in respect of the same cause of action. An objection founded on the sections must be treated as a preliminary point and the deft. cannot raise it for the first time in the court of appeal except on terms which would indemnify the other side for the omission to raise it at the proper time. A suit for divorce based on the wife's misconduct does not bar a subsequent suit for partition of the common properties of the husband and wife. A person's cause of action can be defined as consisting of every fact which would be necessary for the plaintiff to prove if traversed in order to support his right to the judgment of the Court. ———O. 2, R. 2—Causes of action—Identity of—Test.

The question whether there is a bar by O. 2, R. 2, C. P. If the cause of action in the subsequent suit is different from that in the first suit the subsequent suit is not barred by O. 2, R. 2 of the C. P. Code. What the rule requires is that every suit shall include the whole of the claim arising from one and the same cause of action and not that every suit shall include every claim or every cause of action which plff. may have against deft. 8 Mad. 520, foll. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action.

——— O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action.

The mere fact that the title to the property in dispute in both suits is the same and that the property is the same does not necessarily show that the cause of action is the same. The cause of action in a suit by a reversioner for a declaration of his right and for possession after setting aside a gift deed is distinct from that in a subsequent suit for possession as reversionary heirs of the estate on the ground that they were in possession and were dispossessed and the mere fact that the cause of action in the latter suit arose before the institution of the previous suit did not make it obligatory on the plff. to include the claim in the previous suit. (N.R. Chatterjea and Duval, JJ.) MANMATHA NATH BOSE v. JAGAT RAM ROY. 59 I.C. 517.

———O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Meaning of.

A cause of action has no relation to the defence set up by the deft. nor does it depend on the character of the relief prayed for by the plff. It refers entirely to the grounds, set forth in the plaint as the cause of action or, in other words, to the media upon which the plff. asks the Court to arrive to a conclusion in his favour. (Newbould and Duval, JJ.) HARDAS GOSWAMY v. EKKARI KONUR. 52 I.C. 929.

———O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Lease by mortgagee to mortgagor—Prior suit for rent—Subsequent suit for mortgage money not barred.

The defendants executed a usufructuary mortgage and a lease of the same property on the same day and in the lease it was stated that the defendants took the mortgaged property from the plaintiffs on a rent of Rs. 187-8-0 per mensem for six months. Plaintiff first sued for rent and then for mortgage money and it was contended that the second suit was barred by O. 2, R. 2. Held, that although the mortgage-deed and the lease were executed on the same day and rent was equal to the amount of interest yet in view of the facts that the mortgage-deed contained no reference to the lease and that the mortgagees were not restricted in their choice of tenants the mortgage and the lease were two distinct transactions and the institution of the former suit, which was based on the lease, is therefore no bar to the subsequent mortgage suit. 3 Lah. 1, Foll. (Martineau and Campbell, JJ.) RALIA RAM v. AMIR CHAND. 4 Lah. 52=6 Lah. L.J. 259=74 I.C. 122=1923 Lah. 203.

———O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Prior suit for possession—Subsequent suit for redemption.

Where mortgagors have obtained a decree for redemption and have failed to execute it, another suit to redeem will lie for the same reason that the cause of action is not the same. In 1904 the plaintiffs sued for possession ignoring a mortgage to which the plaintiffs objected ab initio. In that suit they were attempting to avoid it and had they prayed for redemption they would have ipso facto admitted their liability to redeem the mortgage; in other words, such a prayer would have cut at the roots of their claim. Subsequently they sued for redemption. Held that the cause of action in the present suit was the mortgage now admitted as binding on the plaintiffs plus a refusal of the mortgagees to accept redemption on the terms offered by the plffs. The second suit was not barred. (Le Rossignol and Martineau, JJ.) JAIMAL v. GANESHI MAL. 4 Lah. 187 = 5 Lah. L J. 296 = 75 I.C. 528 = 1924 Lah. 143.

C. P CODE (V of 1908), O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Mortgage and lease—Suit for rent—Subsequent suit on mortgage bar.

Where deft. mortgaged certain properties to plff. with possession directing him to set off the rent against the interest due on the mortgage, and the plff. sued the deft. as lessees for arrears of rent and obtained a decree, a subsequent suit on the mortgage for recovery of the mortgage money and interest for the remaining period is not barred. 19 A, 496; 26 M. 662, ref. (Le Rossignol and Campbell, JJ.) MAHOMED HUSSAIN v. ABDUL GHAFUR KHAN. 3 Lah. 1 = 65 I.C. 102 = P.W.R. 1922 = 1922 Lah. 111.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Mortgage and lease—Suit for rent—Suit on mortgage not barred.

Where at the time of the execution of a mortgage deed a lease is granted in favour of the mortgagor under which the latter is to continue in possession on payment of a monthly rent, in default of which payment the mortgagor was to be ejected, the mortgage and lease do not form part of the same transaction. Consequently a suit for recovery of the rent due does not debar a suit for the principal amount of the mortgage though the rent was to be applied towards the interest on the mortgage. 69 P. R. 1918; 19 P.R. 1910, Ref. (Abdul Raoof, J.) BHAGWAN DAS v. JALAL DIN. 69 I C. 34 = 1924 Lah. 190.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Suit by mortgagee for possession—Second suit for possession.

Where a mortgagee obtains a decree for possession on the basis of the mortgage, no further suit for possession could be maintained unless it could be shown that possession had been taken under the decree and the judgment-creditor has been subsequently dispossessed. (Leslie Jones and Dundas, JJ.) HAR CHAND SINGH v. NARAIN SINGH. 67 I.C. 281 = 2 L.L.J. 678.

——O, 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Right to eject tenant and right to rent are different causes of action.

The right to recover arrears of rent and the right to eject the tenant on default of payment of rent arise out of different causes of action and a suit to recover arrears of rent is not barred by reason of an earlier suit for ejectment. ——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Mortgage and lease—Suit for rent—Subsequent suit for principal and interest is barred.

Where a person executed a mortgage and a lease simultaneously to another person and the lease provided that the rent would be appropriated for the interest due under the mortgage and on the rent falling into arrears the mortgagee brought a suit and recovered the arrears, held, that the mortgage and lease must be treated as one transaction and that a subsequent suit by the mortgagee to recover principal and interest under the mortgage was barred by O. 2, R. 2. (Leslie Jones and Broadway, JJ.) BALA RAM v. DIWAN CHAND. 63 I.C. 928 = 36 P.W.R. 1921.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Suit for ejectment—Subsequent suit for redemption will lie.

The relationship of owner and trespasser and that of mortgagor and mortgagee are different and the dismissal of a suit for ejectment is no bar to a suit to enforce a right to redeem as mortgagor. (Scott-Smith, J.) CHUNI LAL v. GANDA SINGH. 63 I C. 684.

——O. 2, R. 2—Causes of action—Different—No bar.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Different—Spliting of claim—Mortgaged property leased to mortgagor—First suit for rent—Second suit for principal money.

The mortgagee sued the mortgagor first for recovery of rent of mortgaged property leased to the mortgagor, and next for recovery of mortgage money which he had advanced to the mortgagor. Held, the subsequent suit was not barred by R. 2, O. 2 of the C.P. Code, for the cause of action on the two suits was different. (Shadi Lal and Le Rossignol, JJ.) PINDI DAS v. LAL CHAND. 102 P.L.R. 1916 = 36 I.C. 209 = 177 P.W.R. 1916.

——O. 2, R. 2—Causes of action—Different—No bar—Suit by reversioner — Cause of action.

A second suit will not be barred by the provisions of the rule unless the same cause of action is to be found in the four corners of the plaint in the first suit. A Hindu widow sold her husband's house to deft. and her husband's brother sued for and obtained a decree declaring that the sale could not affect his reversionary right to one half of the house after the widow's death. He subsequently brought a suit for possession of the other half. Held, that the second suit was not barred by the rule, because though the act of widow's selling the house was a single act, it gave rise to two distinct causes of action. (Scott-Smith, J.) MAHOMED ALI v. MIR HAIDAR.

223 P.W.R. 1915=28 I.C. 301=82 P.L.R. 1915.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Arising subsequently.

Where at the time of a previous suit, the plff. had no cause of action for a particular relief, a subsequent suit for that relief will not be barred under O. 2, R. 2. (Rattigan and Scott-Smith, JJ.) KHAN BAHADUR v. ALI AKBAR. 255 P.L.R. 1913=20 I.C. 22=163 P.W.R. 1913.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Different sale of two plots under one deed.

Two plots were sold to plff. under one sale-deed and he filed separate suits for the purchase-money in respect of one and for possession of the other. Held, that the causes of action were different and the latter suit for possession was not barred. (Reid, C.J.) LAKSHIMI DAS v. BALAK RAM. 104 P.R. 1912=182 P.L.R. 1912=16 I.C. 24=156 P.W.R. 1912.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Breach of contract.

It is only when the party, complaining of the breach of contract suffers damage, that a cause of action is said to arise and till then only a term of the contract is broken. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Moore, JJ). KOLAVA KOLAM SEETANNA v. PODDRI NARAYANA MURTHI SOMAYAJULU.
57 I.C. 982=38 M.L.J. 470.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Different—Suit on.

Where a suit is brought either on a non-existent cause of action or upon a false cause of action it will not disable a plff. from filing a fresh suit on the true cause of action because there is no identity of causes of action between the two suits. A right which a litigant possesses without knowing or ever having known that he possesses it cannot be regarded as a portion of his claim under O. 2, R. 2. (Ayling and Seshagiri Aiyar, JJ.) DASARATHI NAIDU v. PALALA KUMARAMULL.
7 L.W. 557=(1918) M.W.N. 427=45 I.C. 989=24 M.L.T. 311.

——O. 2, R. 2—Causes of action—Difference—"Claim for a portion does not bar another claim for balance."

O. 2, R. 2, C. P. C., prohibits only the splitting of claims arising out of the same cause of action. A customer buying articles from a merchant on different occasions has a distinct cause of action for each purchase unless an agreement or settlement of accounts consolidating all these into one account is reached. A claim for a balance after one portion of

2 L.W. 890=29 M.L.J. 474=18 M.L.T. 377=31 I.C. 59=(1915) M.W.N. 765.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Different defts.

A plff. whose suit has been dismissed as against some of the defts. because the cause of action against them was not established, is not precluded from bringing a new suit on the true cause of action against them. ——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Different trespassers—Bar of second suit—Test.

Where there are two trespassers the question whether the second suit is barred or not depends upon the question whether the two trespasses might be considered as a single transaction forming one and the same cause of action. "Cause of action" in O. 2, R. 2 is used more comprehensively than in S. 17, C.P.C. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Spencer, JJ.) JAGATHAMBA AMMAL v. RAMASWAMI AIYANGAR.
25 I.C. 579.

——O. 2, R. 2—Cause of action—Purchase of shares of two members of undivided family—Separate sale-deeds—Suit on first sale-deed—Right to bring suit on other, barred.

Plff. after purchasing the shares of two members of an undivided family under separate sale-deeds, instituted a suit to recover the share purchased under one sale-deed. Held, he was barred from instituting a suit to recover the share under the other sale-deed, as he was bound in the first suit to claim the shares of both the sale-deeds. The plff. had a single cause of action for partition against the family of the vendors and the existence of two sale-deeds would not affect it. (Miller and Tyabji, JJ.) MANONMANI AMMAL v. VAITHILINGA NAICKER. 14 M.L.T. 341=(1913) M.W.N. 881 21 I.C. 402=25 M.L.J. 481.

——O. 2, R 2—Cause of action—Every alienation by Hindu widow gives a separate cause of action to reversioners.

A Hindu reversioner's right to challenge the validity of one alienation made by a Hindu widow is different from his right of impeaching the validity of a separate and independent alienation though both the rights may arise out of one and the same title. Each alienation by the widow gives rise to a separate and distinct cause of action and a suit to impeach one is no bar under O. 2, R. 2, C. P. C., to a subsequent suit to impeach another alienation. (Wasir Hasan, A.J.C.). BAHADUR SINGH v. SULTAN HUSAIN KHAN. 8 O.L.J. 535=66 I.C. 455=3 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 83=1922 Oudh 171.

A widow, with two daughters, mortgaged the house of her husband. After her death one of the daughters sued for her half share and got the possession of it. The other daughter who had attested the mortgage, then sued for her share, but died during the pendency of the litigation. Then the surviving sister applied as her representative. It was contended on behalf of the deft. that the applicant failed to sue on the whole in her previous suit and the deceased plff. had represented the whole share. Held, that the applicant acquired the right to sue on the death of the deceased plff.; and when she sued for her half share, she did not represent the whole estate. (Lindsay, J.C.) BUDHU CHAUDHURI v. HARDEI. 18 I.C. 833.

———O. 2, R. 2—Causes of action—Different—No bar.

O. 2, R. 2, C. P. C., requires that every suit shall include the whole of the claim arising from the one and the same cause of action and not that every suit shall include every claim and every cause of action which the plaintiff may have against the defendant. Consequently if the cause of action in the subsequent suit is different from that in the first suit, the subsequent suit is not barred. The whole question for investigation, therefore is, whether the cause of action in the subsequent suit is the same as that in the first suit. (Coutts and Das, JJ.) MT. Contract.

———O. 2, R. 2—Contract — Delivery of goods by instalments—Breach.

But where a vendee agreed to deliver certain things for half the purchase-money and promised to pay the balance subsequently and where by subsequent agreement, provision was made for any breach of the former part of the contract, causes of action for the first and second part are different. ———O. 2, R. 2—Contract—Distinct causes of action—Contract for sale of Goods—Delivery by instalments—Effect of—Distinct contracts.

Prima facie each order and delivery of goods is a separate transaction and a separate cause of action if not they are successive claims which arise under the same obligation within the explanation at the end of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. Code. The question is really dependent on the contract between the parties. If all the goods were delivered under a single contract it would be within the explanation unless there was an express stipulation that each delivery or each month's deliveries would be considered as a separate contract. The validity of such a clause has been recognised. There are numerous definitions of the expression "Cause of action" and courts have held that the meaning of the expression as used in S. 20, C. P. C., must be gathered from the previous legislation in India and not from the definitions of the expression adopted in certain English decisions. Likewise the meaning of the expression as used in O. 2, R. 2, should be gathered from that rule and the authorities on that rule or on the sections of the previous Code replaced by that Rule, and it should not be assumed that the expression has the same meaning in that rule as it has either in English decisions or in decisions on questions relating to the law of Limitation. Instalment Bond.

———O. 2, R. 2—Instalment bond—Omission to sue for instalments which had accrued due bars subsequent suit therefor.

On 28—6—1917 plff. brought a suit against defts. for recovery of the instalment of an annuity which had fallen due from 1—1—1914 up to 1—1—1917. On 31—7—1917 the suit was dismissed by the Court on the ground that the suit was premature because an appeal was pending with respect to a certain sale-deed. The parties, however, were absent on that date. The plff. applied to the court under O. 9, R. 4, C.P.C. to set aside the dismissal but the application was rejected. Against the order of rejection plff. filed an appeal but on 2—3—1918 that appeal was withdrawn and dismissed. Meantime the instalment of the annuity which fell due on 1—7—1917 had become payable and a suit was brought on 22—12—1917 for its recovery and decreed on 2—4—1918. In a subsequent suit plaintiff claimed arrears of annuity from 1—1—1914 up to 1—7—1919. Held that when the plaintiff brought the suit on 22—12—1917 in respect of the half-yearly instalment of the annuity which had become payable on 1--7--1917 he was bound to include in his claim a claim for all other instalments which had become due up to that date and with respect to which a claim would have been within limitation; and that the present suit was barred by O. 2, R. 2, by reason of the prior suit decreed on 2—4—1918. Plff. cannot be heard to say that he was in any way protected against the operation of O. 2, R. 2, C. P. C. by the fact that he had an appeal pending in the District Court at the time the second suit was filed. After the appeal was withdrawn any protection, which might have accrued to the plaintiff, by reason of the appeal having been filed was taken away and his proper course then was to apply to the court in which the suit was pending and to ask for amendment of the claim and permission to include in the claim a claim for the years 1914 to 1917. Mortgage.

———O. 2, R. 2—Mortgage — Mortgagee, suing twice for sale.

If the mortage provided, as mortgages always do in England, for an independent obligation to pay the principal and the interest, then a suit brought to obtain a personal judgment in respect of the interest alone, would not prevent a subsequent claim for payment of the principal. In such a case the cause of action would be distinct. The matter is, however, different if the non-payment of the interest causes the principal money to become due, as in that case the cause of action, the non-payment of the interest gives rise, to two forms of relief which the Code provides shall not be split. The fact that the decree obtained by the mortgagee was not a decree for sale but in the nature of a personal judgment, does not alter the effect of his claiming a decree for money recoverable from the mortgaged property. The mortgagee obtained a decree in 1904 but the Court refused to go into the question of what arrears of interest were due. The mortgagor subsequently applied to the Collector under Punjab Act II of 1913 and obtained a decision that the mortgage could be redeemed on payment of Rs. 570. O. 2, R. 2 aims at preventing two evils, viz, the splitting of claims and the splitting of remedies. A man omitting from his suit a portion of his claim shall not afterwards be allowed to sue in respect of it. If he omits one of his remedies, he cannot afterwards pursue it. 25 B. 161, foll. Plffs. sued defts. for mortgage money with interest alleging that the land of deft. No. 1 was originally mortgaged with possession to deft. No. 2, by three deeds which were transferred to their father by deft. No. 2. They also alleged that deft. No. 1 orally mortgaged his land to the father of plffs. for Rs. 1,000 and that mutation of this mortgage was effected but was set aside on appeal. It was found that plff.'s father had sued deft. No. 1 for possession of the land alleged to have been orally mortgaged to him, but his suit was dismissed as the mortgage was not proved. Held, that the plffs. ought to have sued for both the remedies, the possession of the land or the return of the mortgage money in the alternative in one suit, and they were precluded from suing for the mortgage money now, by O. 2, R. 2, C. C.P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 2, R. 2—Omission of Claim.

——O. 2, R. 2—Omission of claim—Subsequent suit—Bar.

In a suit in 1908 against deft. for damages for Rs. 1,900 for having dismantled a building situate on certain land and belonging to the plff. in certain undivided shares the plff. alleged that the deft. company had not only dispossessed the plff. from his share of the property by denying the plff.'s title thereto but had wrongfully appropriated the materials of the same on such demolition as aforesaid to the prejudice of the plff.'s right. The plff. did not ask for recovery of possession but got a decree for damages. In a suit brought by the plffs. in 1914 against the same defts. for the recovery of the separate possession of the property after partition, held, that the cause of action in the present suit was the same as that of the former suit and plff. was by O. 2, R. 2 of the C. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 2, R. 2—Partition.

———O. 2, R. 2; (1882, S. 43)—Partition—Successive suits.

The defts. in a partition suit must insist upon the plffs. to join all the properties held jointly. Their failure to do so implies their consent for the joint use of the properties omitted but liable to be partitioned afterwards when any or all of the owners choose. The perpetual recurrence of the cause of action for partition is one of the incidents of joint property. There is a distinction between the rights of tenant in common to claim division of each field between co-tenants and the partition of all the fields held in common. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) MANSARAM CHAKRAVARTI v. GANESH CHAKRAVARTI. 16 I.C. 383 = 17 C.W.N. 521.

———O. 2, R. 2—Partition — Causes of action—Right to sue—Prior suit for dissolution of partnership.

The essential condition for O. 2, R. 2, is that the cause of action in both cases should be identical, and the plff. must have been bound to sue in the earlier case for the relief for which he prays in the subsequent suit. The right of an owner in joint property to sue for partition so long as the property shall remain undivided is a continuing right and once the immoveable property in suit has been declared to be the common property, the plff. has a right to ask for partition at any time. Where a prior suit for dissolution of partnership and accounts between the same parties was referred to arbitration and an award was passed subsequently and one of them sued for partition of the immoveables according to the shares fixed by the award. Held, that though in the first case the plff. ought to have sued for partition of the immoveable property, he was not bound to sue for its partition by metes and bounds. The award and the decree passed in accordance therewith dealt with the right of the parties in the immoveable property by declaring it as their common property in equal shares. The present suit was not one between partners for dissolution of partnership and for rendition of partnership accounts, but was one between tenants-in-common for mesne profits and partition of the common property. The first suit was no bar to the present suit because the causes of action in the two were quite different. (Chevis, Ag. C.J. and Martineau, J.) ZIA-UL-HAQ v. MUHAMMAD IBRAHIM. 56 I C. 701 = 2 Lah. L.J. 528.

———O. 2, R. 2—Partition—Dismissal of prior suit.

A suit for partial partition though dismissed does not bar a suit for partition of all joint properties under O. 2, R. 2 as the causes of action in the two suits are different and as the previous one was dismissed for formal defect. S died in 1900 when H was 5 or 6 years old. After the death of S, the Settlement Officer entered the name of B and H in the Record of Rights. In 1909 a guardian for H was appointed when B averred that the half share entered in her name was her own. In 1911 H sued B for declaration of his right to the whole property alleging fraud on the part of B in having got the property entered as their joint property. B defended on the ground of Record of Rights and impugned the legitimacy of H. In April 1911, the suit was dismissed on the ground that S. 11 of Regn. III of 1872 barred the jurisdiction of the Civil Court in the case. In June an appeal to the Dist. Judge was dismissed on the same ground. H then preferred a Second Appeal. In the meantime H sued for temporary partition on 15th Aug. 1911. B resisted on the ground that the suit lands belonged to her father from whom she inherited them after her brother. ——O. 2, R. 3—Suit for inheritance—Different persons in possession of different portions of the estate.

In a suit by an heir for a share in an estate all the persons in possessions of different portions of the estate cannot be joined as defts. unless they are in possession by virtue of the same transaction or the same series of transactions. Under O. 2, R. 3, a plff. cannot join in the same suit several causes of action against several defts. unless they are all jointly interested in each separate cause of action. (Young, J.) W. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 2, R. 4.

A person sued in different capacities is not the same defendant but a separate person in respect of each capacity. Claims against different estates cannot be joined in one suit merely because all such estates are represented by the same person, unless they are based on the same instrument affecting plaintiff's rights against all the estates. ——O. 2, R. 5—"Estate" Meaning of.

The word "estate" means not only the "estate" rightly and properly held by executors but also the "estate" in its physical sense, so that a claim against an executor as such can be joined with a claim against him personally when both the claims arise in reference to the same estate. ——O. 2, R. 5—'Arises with reference to' —Construction—Partnership between plaintiff's father and defendant—Subsequent partnership between plaintiff and defendant with old assets—Plaintiff obtaining letters of administration to his father's estate—Suit by plaintiff to recover father's share in the first partnership and his own share in the second—Not bad for misjoinder.

Plaintiff's father who was divided from the plaintiff was carrying on a business in partnership with the first defendant which lasted till the plaintiff's father's death. Subsequent to the plaintiff's father's death the plaintiff and the first defendant carried on business with the old partnership assets the plaintiff subsequently obtained letters of administration to his father's estate. He as administrator brought the present suit for the accounts of the partnership between his father and the first defendant. He also claimed in the same suit his share in the partnership between himself and the first defendant. Such a suit does not offend the provisions of O. 2, R. 5, C.P. Code, and it comes within the exception specified in the rule as the plaintiffs personal claim in respect of the partnership with himself "arises with reference to the estate in respect of which he is suing as administrator". The words "arises with reference to" in the exception to O. 2, R. 5 are very general and cover a case where the plaintiff's personal claim can only be determined after calculating the amount due to him as administrator. The expression "arises with reference to" should not be read as being equivalent only to "arises against or on behalf of." Tredegar v. Roberts, (1914) 1 K. B. 283 dist. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 2, R. 6.

——O. 2, R. 5—Executor—Money—Attachment.

It is contrary to the principle of O. 2, R. 5 to attach money in the hands of an executor, administrator, or heir as such, in execution of a decree against them personally, though the executor is a legatee and the money in his hands is due to him personally as legatee. The right course is to attach the right, title and interest of the legatee, and the executor may be restrained from receiving in his personal capacity, any portion of the money in his hands as executor and from dealing with it otherwise than in his representative capacity. (Young, J.) K. HILL v. M. M. GREENBERG. 38 I.C. 563 = 9 Bur. L T. 226.

——O. 2, R. 6—Separate trials—Causes of action not conveniently triable together—Suit against executors of inherited properties and trustees of charity—Advocate-General's sanction—Finding premature.

The case contemplated by O. 2, R. 5 is one where the causes of action joined in the same suit are essentially different. If facts alleged in the plaint arise out of facts that are common to both the causes of action joined in the suit, the Court should not exclude one of them on the ground that it would not be convenient to try those two causes of action together. In a suit against two classes of defendants firstly, against the executors of late husband's will to account for moneys come to their hands has executors and secondly, against the trustees of certain charity established by her husband, under a scheme settled by the District Judge on a compromise entered into between the executors and the then guardian of the minor plaintiff, for a declaration that the scheme relating to the charity settled by the District Judge was obtained by fraud and was not binding upon her, the Court excluded the first cause of action from the suit and about the second, held that that cause of action could not be tried without the consent of the Advocate General which had not been obtained. Held, that the order of the Court exoluding one of the causes of action should be set aside and the order of sanction was premature. As a pardanashin lady is not able to accept service personally, she comes under the expression "cannot be found" under O. 5, Rr. 14 and 17, and service of summons can be effected by serving it on any adult male member of the family, or affixing it on the outer door of the house in which the lady ordinarily resides. Instead of serving the notice on the pleader, it was served on the plff.'s munim, an agent. In consequence of this, the plff. and his pleader both were absent and the suit was dismissed. Held, that the order of the court, not having been properly complied with in the matter of giving notice, notice given to the munim was held not to be a notice to the plff. or his pleader and the order of dismissal was set aside. Where a peon who went to serve a deft. with summons was informed that the deft. had gone to another Presidency and affixed the summons to the outer door, it was held that this was sufficient compliance with the provisions of O. 5, R. 17 because a mere temporary absence from a house will not make the house, one in which the deft. did not ordinarily reside. 24 A. 302; 30 B. 623; 21 M. 419; 29 M. 324; 21 B. 223, dist; 21 M. 324, rel. on. Mere temporary absence of the deft. does not justify the serving officer in affixing a copy of the summons on the door of his house. From the affidavit of the serving officer it appeared that the deft. refused to accept service of the summons which was, therefore, affixed to the outer door of his dwelling. The Court granted an ex parte preliminary decree to the plff. for dissolution of partnership and accounts and directed the deft. to file a true and full account of the partnership. The deft. applied for setting aside the ex parte decree. Held, that inasmuch as the deft. refused to accept service of the notice although it was read out to him and he was repeatedly asked to receive it and as he did not categorically deny the facts stated by the process server in his affidavit, the Court was justified in proceeding ex parte against the deft. In the temporary absence of the person to be served with notice, the server must take every step to effect personal service. If without doing so the process server affixes the summons to the outer door of the house, a Court is not justified in treating this as due service. The C. P. Code does not take into account the female members of the family on the presumption that they would not necessarily inform the male of what took place in his absence. (Kanhaiya Lal, A J.C.) ———O. 6, R. 4—Fraud—Particulars—Duty to disclose—Procedure.

Where the defendant pleads fraud in his defence in a vague position it is the duty of the pleader for the plaintiff to apply to the Court to order the defendant to deliver further and better particulars of the charge of fraud. When settling issues it is the duty of the Judge himself to require the defendant to specify with particularity the nature of the fraud alleged. Subordinate Judges should be watchful to see that in all cases the parties have pleaded their cases so plainly, fully and clearly that each side knows the nature of the case which has to be met, and this rule is one of general application. Frequently the result of ordinary particulars of nebulous claims and defences will be to make it manifest that the claim or defence has no substance. A Subordinate Judge should, when ordering particulars to be given, order the party in default to pay a specified sum of costs to the other side for the costs occasioned by the application; such payment to be made on or before the delivery of the particulars. If the order is disobeyed and if the plaintiff is in default he should have his action staged; and if the defendant is in default, his defence should be struck out. Particulars having been furnished the Judge should be careful at the trial to exclude all evidence which is not fairly covered by the original paragraph and particularly should give that as his reason. ———O. 6, R. 4—Coercion—Fraud—Particulars to be stated.

Where fraud or coercion is alleged, it must, by law, be supported by particulars and it is only after due proof and establishment of those particulars, can the Court find as a matter of fact that the alleged fraud or coercion is proved. A Court cannot give the go by to every material particular alleged, and yet reach the conclusion which ought only to be reached by those steps. ——O. 6, R. 14—Signature of plaint—Prisoner in jail.

The breach of Jail Regulations by the prisoner, his pleader or friends cannot destroy a cause of action or invalidate a plaint. A person in jail, who is unable to sign a plaint, may authorise some other person under O. 6, R. 14 to sign it for him and the plaint so signed will be a valid plaint. 22 All. 55, Ref. The object of courts is to decide the right of parties and not to punish them for mistakes which they may make in the conduct of their case. (Walsh, J.) BISHESHAR NATH v. EMPEROR. 16 A. L. ———O. 6, R. 16—Alternative claims.

A Court can at any stage of the proceedings direct that any matter in any pleading which may tend to prejudice, embarass or delay the fair trial of a suit be amended or struck out. But the Court is not to dictate to the parties how they should frame their cases. The object of permitting alternative relief to be claimed in one litigation is to obviate the necessity of another litigation, to dispose of the same controversy or the subject matter of the same relief though the ground upon which the relief is claimed, may be different. ———O. 6, R. 17—Discretion—Principles—Minor.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 6, R. 17—Discretion.

———O. 6, R. 17—Discretion of court—Interference in appeal.

O. 6, R. 17 of the C. P. Code confers a very wide discretion upon the court with respect to the amendment of pleadings. An order allowing amendment will not be set aside on appeal when the amendment has not caused prejudice to the deft. (Shadi Lal and Wilberforce, JJ.) F. A. ———O. 6, R. 17—Discretion — Appellate Court.

Where the first Court accepted a suit on a balance of account as amended into a suit on previous accounts, the Appellate Court must not dismiss the suit. AMIR CHAND v. SUNDERMAL. 7 P L.R. 1912=12 I.C. 617=207 P.W.R. 1911.

———O. 6, R. 17 and O. 14, R. 5—Discretion—Revision.

The power of allowing amendment is discretionary and unless its exercise is shown to be absurd or perverse, no revision lies from it. (Reid, C. J.) INDAR NARAIN v NANAK CHAND. 51 P.L.R. 1911=9 I C. 267=193 P.L.R. 1911.

———O. 6, R. 17—Discretion of Court—General principles.

It is within the discretion of a court to grant permission to amend the pleadings. Provided the opposite party is not taken by surprise or precluded from giving evidence, the court should grant leave to amend the plaint. It should be refused where the party is agitating only a technical claim or where it would alter the character of the suit, or where there has been inordinate delay in applying for amendment. The main object of allowing an amendment is to avoid multiplicity of suits. After the disposal of the appeal the plff. was allowed to amend his plaint by adding a new claim for mense profits which was omitted in the first suit. (Seshagiri Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) RAMASWAMI REDDI v. GANGA RADDI. 48 I.C. 619.

———O. 6, R. 17—Discretion of Court—Principles guiding.

It is left to the discretion of the Court to grant leave for amending a plaint and such leave should not, under particular circumstances, be refused merely because the amended plaint would become time-barred, if there is no material alteration in the plaint by the amendments and the claim is not barred on the date of the filing of the plaint. In these matters exercise of discretion one way or another depends upon the particular facts of each case, and the court should take into consideration the question of delay in applying for leave and the consequent question of limitation. When an application for leave to amend, is based on a mistake in regard to a recent decision necessitating the amendment, long delay in making the application and the fact of the decision making no change in the law would be grounds for refusing the leave applied for. (Oldfield and Krishnan, JJ.) GATIGANTI SUBBARAYUDU v. ARUMILLI SURAYYA.

37 I.C. 914.

——O. 6, R. 17—Discretion—Exercise of.

Discretion in allowing amendment should be freely exercised but not where the suit by amendment would relate to a different subject-matter. (Sadasiva Aiyar and Napier, JJ.) PAYKAL MANAKKAL v. THEYYANKARAN.

——O. 6, R. 17—Discretion—Laches.

The language of O. 6, R. 17, C.P.C., is very wide but indulgence under it is not to be shown when the plaintiff failed to avail himself of the other remedies open to him. (Spencer and Coutts Trotter, JJ.) RAMANADHAN v. ANNAMALAI. 29 I.C. 132.

——O. 6, R. 17—Discretion—Character of suit changed.

An amendment altering the character of the suit entirely, was under section 53 of the Old Code, expressly forbidden. But section 135, and rule 17 of order 6 of the present Code make no express restriction on the discretion of the Court, provided it is judicially exercised. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) SHEONARAIN v. RAM PRASAD.
74 I.C. 317=1923 Nag. 241.

——O. 6, R. 17—Discretion of Court—General rule—Change of plea.

O. 6, R. 17 of the Code is in more general terms than the corresponding S. 53 of the Code of 1882. Questions of amendment of pleadings are entirely in the discretion of the court, which must be exercised in accordance with settled judicial principles. Amendment must be either raised in the pleadings or be consistent with the case originally laid; the state of facts and the equities and grounds of relief originally alleged and pleaded by the plff. should not be departed from. 6 Cal. 871 and 11 M.I.A. 7, Foll. A suit to enforce a mortgagor's right of redemption cannot be amended so as to convert it into a suit to enforce a right as owner. (Fox, C. J. and Teunon, J.) NAUK TO v. MA HININ. 9 Bur. L.T. 180=36 I.C. 5=8 L.B.R. 418.

——O. 6, R. 17—Discretion— Principles—Amendment of plaint.

The power of granting amendments of plaint is discretionary with the Court, and in so exercising that discretion regard should be had to the fact that no amendment should be allowed which alters the nature of the case. But an amendment should not be refused merely because it introduces a new case but not a new cause of action. (Bell, J.) STEEL BROTHERS AND COMPANY v. CASSIMJI AHMED MADHA.

——O. 6, R. 17—Discretion—Appellate court.

If in an amended plaint there is no irreconcilable contradiction between the allegations in the original and in the amended plaints, the Appellate Court should not take the objection that the amended plaint put forward a new case of its own motion, nor should it decide without giving the plff. an opportunity to explain. A Court is not bound by any absolute rule of law in granting amendments. In a suit for redemption of a mortgage, the mortgagor being the owner of an impartible estate the plaintiff died and his legal representative sought to amend the plaint, by including a cause of action for a declaration that the mortgage was not binding on him, the successor to the estate. Held, that the amendment could not be allowed. It is not open to the legal representative of a deceased plaintiff, to seek to include in the plaint by way of an amendment, a claim or relief, which the original plaintiff himself could not have asked for. The proper course for the legal representative is to file a separate suit for such a relief. The wide powers of amendment given under the Code of 1908 are always subject to the rule that by means of an amendment the subject-matter of the suit cannot be changed, or one distinct and inconsistent cause of action cannot be substituted for another. In a suit contesting an adoption, plff. applied after a considerable body of evidence had been taken, to amend the plaint for the purpose of alleging that the parties did not recognise the custom of adoption. Held, the plff. could not be allowed to amend the plaint at that stage. Evidence, however was admissible to show the origin of the community to which the plff.'s ancestors belonged as there was nothing in the plaint as originally filed which was irreconcilable with such evidence and such evidence was relevant to an issue which had been framed to determine whether the estate was governed by a custom which barred inheritance by adopted sons. Where in the written statement the defts. raised a plea that the suit was badly framed inasmuch as possession had not been asked for and an issue was raised on this contention of the defts. but yet the plff. never thought of applying for the necessary amendment of the plaint; and the trial Judge allowed the plff. an opportunity of amending plaint and yet the plff. refused to amend, and it was only after the whole case was concluded and the plff. probably had suspicions as to the bent of the Judge's mind for amendment. Held the Court below acted quite rightly in refusing the amendment. 9 S.L.R. 174; 26 C. 845, Foll. ———O. 6, R. 17—Limitation — Execution application.

If a cause of action is sought to be added by way of amendment and a fresh suit on that cause of action would be barred if instituted at the time of the amendment, then ordinarily, Courts would not allow the amendment so as to give the plaintiff the benefit of the time between the date of institution of suit and the time of amendment. ———O. 6, R. 17 — Limitation — Adding another relief which is barred—General rule—Appeal.

An amendment operates retrospectively from date of institution of the suit. The general rule that amendment resulting in a claim for fresh relief which is barred since institution of the suit, will not be allowed, does not apply when it is ordered in the interest of and at the instance of the defendant. Where the plaintiff asked for an amendment within the period of limitation and the same was disallowed, an Appellate Court can give effect to it, even though the period of limitation had then elapsed. the order was made. If this would have involved a lengthy enquiry covering the same ground as the evidence in the suit, the hearing of the application to amend should have been adjourned to the hearing of the suit and determined on the evidence then taken. The Court being desirous of getting at the true facts will allow an amendment subject to the three chief general conditions: Bona fides on the part of the applicant, possibly of amendment without such prejudice to the other party as cannot be compensated by costs (such as prejudice to rights accrued) and subject to this that the amendment is not such as to turn a suit of one character into a suit of another character. 18 Cal. 871; 18 Bom. 144; 16 W.R. 123; 9 B.H.C.R. 1; 5 Bom. ——— O. 6, R. 17—Power of Court.

O. 6, R. 17, C.P.C., gives ample power to the Court to give leave to the parties to amend the pleadings but such leave should not be given where the amendment would prejudice the opposite party. ——— O. 6, R. 17—Power of Court—Duty of Court to allow all amendments—Application before framing of issues.

A Court should always grant leave to amend unless it is satisfied that the party applying was acting mala fide or that by his blunder he had done some injury to his opponent which could not be compensated for by costs or otherwise. However negligent or careless may have been the omisision, the amendment should be allowed if it could be made without injustice to the other side. (Scott-Smith, J.) ———— O. 6, R. 17—Power of Court—Amendment when allowed.

The powers of amendment under the new Code are much wider than under the old one. But it is an accepted principle that amendment will not be allowed if it converts the suit into one which is not only different from but is inconsistent with the plaint as originally framed. Where the amendment meets the ends of justice by allowing the whole question in dispute to be decided between the parties and avoid unnecessary litigation, then it ought to be allowed. ———— O. 6, R. 17—Powers of Court—New Code.

The new Code gives extended powers to courts to allow amendments of plaints in a late stage even if the amendment would alter the character of the suit; such amendments should usually be allowed and the defendants compensated for loss possibly occasioned to them thereby. ———— O. 6, R. 17—Powers of Court—Amendment of plaint after preliminary decree—Partition suit.

The rule regarding amendment of a plaint is not absolutely mandatory and a rigid rule of Law. It has been read as subject to the inherent power of the court to prevent abuse of its powers. An amendment necessary to the settlement of real dispute must be permitted if it does not cause injustice which cannot be compensated for in costs. ———— O. 6, R. 17—Procedure—Opportunity to amend written statement.

Where an application to amend a plaint is made, the only matter for consideration is, whether the amendment can be permitted without injustice to the defendant an injustice which cannot be remedied by an appropriate order for costs. 12 C.L.J. 556, ref. If plaintiff is allowed to amend his plaint by including certain property in his claim which had been omitted by mistake, defendant should be allowed an opportunity to amend his written statement and produce evidence to rebut the new claim of the plaintiff. Refusal to Amend.

The plaintiff sued for money on a promissory note, which he alleged had been executed by the defendant in consideration of certain sums due. The defendant denied having executed the promissory note, but he was suspected to have substituted a forged promissory note for the one which he had written. The Finger Print Bureau at Allahabad were of the opinion that the finger printed in the document did not agree with those of the defendant. The trial Court held that the plaintiff is entitled to sue on the oral settlement made before the promissory note was given, and on the basis of that settlement it had given the plaintiff a decree for the full amount claimed. On appeal by defendant, the plaintiff had nowhere stated that he wished to change the basis of his suit and fall back on the oral settlement, nor had he asked to be allowed to amend his plaint. The suit had been passed through solely on the promissory note, held, when it has been found that the promissory note sued upon is a forgery, the claim must necessarily fail. Revision.

Though orders refusing amendment have been set aside by the High Courts on revision where the lower courts have acted with material irregularity, each case must be decided on its own merits, and no hard and fast rule can be laid down that an amendment must, as a general rule be allowed where a refusal to amend would be likely to result in hardship to a party. The test to be applied is whether the amendment would or would not occasion injury to the opposite party such as cannot be recouped by costs and leave to amend should generally be refused if it would. Absence of a specific denial in the written statement about the plaintiff's title to the suit property would not justify a Court in inferring that the deft.'s silence in the written statement amounted to a constructive admission of the title, in view of the fact, that the standard of pleadings in India is not very high. ——O. 8, R. 5—Discretion when to be used—Admission made collusively or to evade a rule of public policy.

The discretion under this rule, should be exercised by the lower Court where it suspects an admission, made collusively or to avoid a rule of public policy. —— —— O. 8, R. 5—Minor defendant—Allegation of proper execution of mortgage by plaint not denied—Issue not raised at the trial nor evidence adduced—Decree on mortgage— Omission to raise issues on question of fact.

The scope of O. 8, R. 5 is only this, that the omission to deny an allegation of fact in the plaint is not to be taken as an admission in the case of minor defendants and the rule has nothing to do with the conduct of the suit afterwards. In a suit on a mortgage against minor defendants, the return statement did not deny the allegations in the plaint as to the proper execution of the mortgage. Defendants neither asked for an issue not let in evidence on the question but the whole trial proceeded only on the issues as the limitation and res judicata Held, there was the plea as to want of proper execution at the trial and that it was not incumbent on the Court to require proof of execution of the mortgage from the plaintiff. 26 Bom. 380, Dist, 7 M.L.T. 106, Ref. ——O. 8, R. 5—Defendant ex parte—Proof of plaint allegations when necessary—Practice.

Under O. 8, R. 5 where the defendant does not appear at all he must be taken to have admitted all the allegations in the plaint. Therefore ordinarily in an ex parte case no issue arises at all and there is nothing for the plaintiff to prove. But by the proviso to O. 8, R. 5 it is left to the discretion of the Court to select some of the facts which under the rule itself must be regarded as admitted and to say that the plaintiff must prove them in spite of the implied admission. The Courts do in practice almost invariably, though often tacitly, direct that the main points alleged in the plaint are to be proved otherwise than by the implied admission of the defendants and only the minor points are to be taken as proved by that admission. But when the Court accepts certain allegations in the plaint as proved by the implied admission of the defendant and selects others as requiring proof by the plaintiff it is bound to tell the plaintiff clearly what the points are that have been so selected and the only way to do this is to state them as issues. In the majority of ex parte cases it is so clear to everybody what the points selected as requiring proof otherwise than by the implied admission are that it is unnecessary to state them at all, and this would seem to be the state of things for which the last paragraph of rule 1 of O. 14 provides. But if there is any room for doubt about the matter, then the Court is bound to inform the plaintiff specifically which points he has to prove and which can be taken as proved. ——O. 8, R. 6—Damages—Servant leaving service without notice—Suit for salary.

The plaintiff left his employment without notice on the 4th April, 1916, and sued for salary for March, 4 days of April and for May. The defendant, the employer claimed to set-off the pay for April "as damages in lieu of notice." Held, that the employer could not counter-claim to set off a month's salary as damages in the same suit. ——O. 8, R. 6—Barred debt, set off—Punjab Loans Limitation Act—Money can be set-off in suit in United Provinces.

A defendant can set off against the plaintiff's demand any ascertained sum of money legally recoverable by him from the plaintiff. Money recoverable under the Punjab Act can be set-off in a suit in the United Provinces, though the claim would be barred under the Limitation Act. (Knox and Rafique, JJ.) ——O. 8, R. 6—Set-off—Counter-claim—Distinction—Claim for unliquidated damages—Omission to plead—Amendment.

Under O. 8, R. 6, C.P.C., it is not open to a defendant to claim a set-off in respect of unliquidated damages for alleged breaches of contracts. But the C. P. Code does not exclude what is called an equitable set-off provided the defendant's cross-demand arises out of the same transaction as the plaintiff's claim. 2 M. H. C. R. 296, 303 foll. Under R. 118 of the Bom. High Court Rules a defendant may set up by way of set-off or counter-claim against the claims of the plaintiff's any right or claim whether such set-off or counter-claim sounds in damages or not. Nothing which was not a good set off before the passing of the said rule can be a good set-off under the said rule the set-off must still be for an ascertained sum or it must arise out of the same transaction, as the plaintiff's claim. A counter-claim, however, need not arise out of the same transaction. Set-off is a ground of defence and it should be pleaded in the written statement. Counter-claim does not afford any defence to the plff.'s claim: it is a weapon of offence which enables a defendant to enforce a claim against the plff. as effectually as in an independent action. The above distinction between a set-off and counter-claim has an important bearing on the question of limitation, for if the statute of limitations is pleaded to a defence of set-off, the plaintiff, in order to establish his plea, must prove that the set-off was barred when the plaintiff commenced his action; it is not enough to prove that it was barred at the time when it was pleaded. In the case of a counter-claim, it is enough for the plaintiff to prove that the counter-claim was barred when it was pleaded. Wlaker v. Clemens, (1850) 15 Q B. 104; Mc Gowan v. Middleton, (1888) 11 Q.B. 464; 7 A. 204, 42 M. 873 Rel. (Mulla, J.) NAJAN AHMED HAJI ALI v SALEMAHOMED PEERMAHOMED.

A set-off and counter-olaim are governed by rules or procedure, and a person can only plead by way of set-off or counter-olaim that which is permitted by those rules. A set-off can be pleaded as a defence and can only be raised where the olaim to set-off one against the other whether by plff. or deft. exists in the same right. A set-off can also be the subject-matter of a separate action or a counter-claim. In a suit by a share-holder for recovery of dividends declared by the company it is not open to the directors to olaim by way of set-off damages due from plaintiff in respect of alleged breaches of contract. When a suit is dismissed or decreed under O. 9, or O 17, C P Code, the Court should state, under what provision of the law it has acted. An adjournment was granted at the request of the plaintiff, to enable him to amend his plaint and on the date fixed, the plaintiff's pleader again applied for time and the Court recorded the following order: "No step taken for prosecution. The suit is dismissed thereon:" Held, the Court could not have acted under R. 3 of O. 9 because the plaintiff's pleader did in fact appear and ask for an adjournment and there was nothing in the order recorded to show that he was not willing to prosecute the suit upon the original plaint without amending it. The Court should have framed issues and continued the hearing of the suit. As the Court had dismissed the suit, without applying its mind to any provision of law at all, this amounted to a refusal to exercise jurisdiction, and, therefore S. 115 of the C.P. ———O 9, R. 8 and O. 17, Rr. 2 and 8—Scope of—Failure to appear—Procedure.

O. 17, C.P. Code deals generally with adjournments. Under O 17, R. 2, where on any day to which the hearing of the suit is adjourned, the parties or any of them fail to appear, the Court may dispose of the suit under O. 9, C. P. Code. In all the cases which come under O. 9, C. P. C. the party against whom a decree or order is passed in default of his appearance, can apply to the court to have the ex parte decree or order set aside on the ground that he can show sufficient cause for his non-appearance. Ordinarily if a case appears on the board on an adjourned date for hearing, and there is default of appearance on the part of both or either of the parties, the court must refer to O. 9, C. P. Code so as to ascertain the proper procedure to be followed and there is no necessity whatever to have any recourse to O. 17, R. 3. Where the hearing of a suit had not commenced and the plff. did not appear on the adjourned date, the suit should be dismissed under O. 9, R. 8, C. P. C., and not under O. 17, R. 3, C. P. C. In the case of a dismissal under O. 17, R. 3, C. P. C., the remedy is by way of appeal or review and in the case of a dismissal under O. 17, R. 2, the party can apply to set aside the dismissal under O. 9, R. 9 or R 13, C P. Code. Courts should exercise extreme caution, when, on an adjourned date the parties or any of them fail to appear. They should in the first place have recourse to O. 17, R. 2 rather than O. 17, R. 3 and even in cases where O. 17, R. 3 can be considered to apply, that is to say, where the case has been part heard and an adjournment granted, it would not be in accordance with justice to refuse a party who had failed to appear on the adjourned date at the time fixed, the chance of having the suit restored. 20 B. 736, 743, foll.

———O. 9, R. 8—Scope of.

The 18th Feb. 1922, had been fixed for the hearing of the suits, but when the plff. arrived at Asni early that morning, he found that the presiding officer of the Court had left for Miltrankot. He at once went to Miltrankot, and learnt from the Muharrir of the court, whom he found there, that the suits had been dismissed for default and that the Munsif had left for Dera Ghazi Khan. He went to Dera Ghazi Khan and on the 20th Feb. put in applications for the restoration of the cases. He was told that the applications would be brought up when the Munsif returned to Asni, but was not given a date. The applications were laid before the Munsif after his return on the 27th March and he directed that the records should be sent for the 11th April and that the plaintiff should produce evidence. That order, however, was passed in the plff.'s absence and was not communicated to him. He afterwards learnt from the Muharrir that the 11th April was fixed for his appearance in Court, and he appeared on that date. The Munsif then summarily rejected the applications, remarking that the plff.'s plea was absurd and that he had produced no evidence. Held the Munsiff's procedure was illegal. (Martineau, J.) ———O. 9, Rr. 8 and 9 and S. 2 (2)—Decree for portion of claim—Appeal—Dismissal for default—Restoration.

In a suit, if a decree is passed for the part of the plff.'s claim acknowledged by the deft. and the rest is dismissed for deft's default of appearance under O. 9, R. 8, it is an appealable decree within the meaning of S. 2 (2) The acknowledgment by the deft. must be of the claim as stated in the plaint and for the amount as stated therein and not simply of the cause of action. S. 2 (2), C.P.C. applies to the total and not partial dismissal of a suit. A case was dismissed for the default of the plff. The deft. admitted the execution of the bond but pleaded the discharge of the part of the liability by work and labour done by him for the plff. The Court decreed the suit for the rest balance, Held, the part dismissed was an appealable decree. (Doubtful) :— The deft's plea was a cause within the meaning of O. 9, R. 8, and was neither a plea of set off or common action. The words in R. 8, 'admits the claim or part thereof' are applicable to the cases where the Court can consider on the examination of the plaint and deft.'s written statement, that the deft. is ready to pay the admitted claim there and then or submit to the relief claimed in the plaint. The word 'Claim' in O. 9, R. 8, being synonymous with the amount sued for, refers to the right claimed irrespective of the amount stated in the relief column. The plff. would get a decree under O. 9, R. 8, if the deft.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 9, R. 8.

admits the right, otherwise not. A plff. guilty of some technical error or mistake ought not to be shut out from the judgment seat as the costs against the plff. will afford the deft. a good protection. (Coutts Trotter and Seshagiri Aiyar, JJ.) MUNISAWMI GOUDU v. JUNJADU.

——O. 9. R. 8 and O. 17, R. 2—Default of plaintiff to appear at adjourned hearing—Dismissal.

O. 17, R. 2 only gives a judicial discretion to the Court to dismiss the suit under O. 9, on default of plff. to appear; hence a Court will not be justified in dismissing when plff. has prima facie proved his case. (Phillips, J.) SUBRAMANIA OTHUWAR v. MUNUSAMIYA PILLAI. 31 I.C. 869.

When the death of the plff. was not brought to the notice of the Court and nobody appeared on the date of hearing on behalf of the plff. the Court had jurisdiction to dismiss the suit under O. 9. An application lies to restore a former application which is dismissed for default. At the same time when that application is rejected, no appeal lies from the order of rejection. O. 43, R. 1 (c) shows that an appeal lies from an order under O. 9, R. 9, rejecting an application from an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit. This cannot be interpreted to mean that an appeal lies from an order under R. 9, O. 9, rejecting an application for an order to set aside the dismissal of an application, but a revision lies. ——O. 9, R. 9—Dismissal for default—Fresh suit.

Where, a claim preferred to an attachment having been disallowed, a regular suit instituted thereafter by the claimant was dismissed for default, the execution petition being in the meanwhile withdrawn, a fresh suit for the same declaratory right brought on the decree-holder's fresh application for execution is barred under O. 9, R. 9, as there was no fresh cause of action and under Art. 11 of the Limitation Act as the fresh suit was not brought within one year of the rejection of the objection. ——O. 9, R. 9 and Sch. III—Dismissal of execution for default—No power to restore.

An order of a Collector restoring an execution case to his file after it was dismissed by him in default of the decree-holder is illegal and without jurisdiction. Execution Proceedings.

——O. 9, R. 9—Execution proceedings.

O. 9, R. 9 does not apply to an application under O. 21, R. 2 (2) and no appeal lies from an order dismissing an application for revival of a petition under O. 21, R. 2 (2) dismissed for default. ——O. 9, R. 9—Execution proceedings—Dismissal for default—Whether the rule is applicable—Remedy.

A fresh application for execution is competent when a previous application is dismissed for default, as R 9 does not apply. Ex parte orders or decrees and orders of dismissal for default made in the course of execution proceedings lie outside the scope of the remedies provided by O. 9. But when in relation to such a proceeding no special remedy is provided by the Code, the Courts have under the general law, aided perhaps by S. 158, an inherent power

Where an application for setting aside an execution sale under O. 21, R. 90 is dismissed for default another application lies under O. 9, R. 9 to set aside that order. An application for setting aside a sale under S. 47 and O. 21, R. 90 is not an application for execution. It is a miscellaneous proceeding in the nature of an original proceeding in which the auction-purchaser is the principal interested party. S. 141 does not apply to applications for execution. (*D. ———O. 9, R. 9—Sufficient cause—Many adjournments at plaintiff's request—His absence at the last hearing—Dismissal for default.

A suit was repeatedly adjourned at plaintiff's request, and he stated that he did not desire to prosecute the claim. On the day of the last hearing he was absent and his pleader had no instructions and thus the suit was dismissed for default. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 9, R. 12.

———O. 9, R. 9—Sufficient cause—Illness of brother—Other grounds if can be urged under.

Illness of a brother was held not sufficient cause to set aside a dismissal for default. In an application for restoration, it is not open to attack the order on the ground that the proper course was to reject the plaint under O. 7, R 11, as that is a matter for appeal. (Miller, C.J., and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) RAMBHANJAN SINGH v. PASHUPAT RAI. 2 Pat. 784=74 I.C. 847=1924 P. 271.

———O. 9, R. 9—Sufficient cause—Mistake as to date.

After being satisfied of the cause for default of prosecution, the Appellate Court is bound to set aside the dismissal order. Where a man carelessly trusted his defective memory without consulting the briefs in the Advocate's office, the failure to attend an appeal on that impression is not a sufficient cause to restore it after the dismissal for default. But the Court can consider the question of restoration independently of the O. 9, R. 9, for just and sufficient cause if an appeal is dismissed for default. If the decree appealed against is unjust or wrong on merits it might be a good cause to restore the appeal on terms. (Twomey, J.) MAUNG PO TU v. CHAUNG TAIK. 15 I.C. 338=5 Bur. L.T. 72.

———O. 9, R. 13—Service of summons.

It is not legally necessary to give the defendant notice of an application by the plaintiff for a final decree in a mortgage suit. The summons mentioned in rule 13 of Order 9 is the first summons issued to the defendant giving him notice of the suit filed and the failure to appear mentioned in the same rules means failure to appear at any time during the suit and not absence at some of the hearings, even if they are all the hearings after the first at which the plaintiff may have made a number of applications of various sorts. That rule does not therefore apply to the case of a defendant who is merely not served with notice of some application made in the course of the suit. (Batten J.C and Hallifax, A.J.C.). On an application to set aside an ex parte decree the question to be considered is whether the defendant honestly intended to be present at the hearing of the suit and did his best to do so. Once the court is satisfied that he did try to be present in court in time and would have got there in time but for the intervention of an accident for which he was in no way responsible, it is the duty of the court to set aside the ex parte decree, muleting in proper cases, the defendant in costs. The proper way of clearing up the pleadings after the plaint and written statement have been filed is that prescribed by O. 10, R. 1, C.P. Code the provisions of which are peremptory. The Court must, under that rule, at the first hearing of the suit, ascertain from each party or his pleader whether he admits or denies the allegations of fact made by the opposite party except where such admissions or denials are already contained in the written pleadings and must record such admissions or denials. A written replication is not a substitute for this oral examination of the parties and their pleaders and it is of the utmost importance for the purpose of doing justice between the parties that this oral examination should be duly and carefully carried out by the court. Code clearly applies, when on settlement of issues the Court thinks there are issues of law upon which the case of some part thereof may be disposed of; then those issues are to be tried first and settlement of issues of fact may be postponed. O. 15, R. 3 (1), C.P.C., applies after issues have been framed and allows the court to determine issues of law, if satisfied that no further argument or evidence than the parties can at once adduce, is required upon such of the issues as may be sufficient for the decision of the suit. ———O. 17, Rr. 2 and 3—Pleader having no instructions—Order of dismissal — Construction.

Adjournment of a suit was granted to plaintiffs for producing witnesses: but on the adjourned date they were absent and their pleader applied for permission to withdraw the suit with liberty to file a fresh suit, which was refused. A further adjournment was then asked for and being refused, the pleader said he had no instructions to do anything further in the case, and left the court. An order was made dismissing the suit and on an application for restoration being made, the question arose whether the dismissal was under O. 17, R. 2 or O. 17, R. 3. Held Per Walsh, J:—Under whatever form the Judge may make an order disposing of a case or however he may misunderstand what he is doing or whatever mistaken language he may use in disposing of the case, the court has to look at the actual facts as things were at the time and decide under which rule the order was made. Where a party does not personally appear even though his counsel originally instructed is there, if he has failed to supply his counsel with materials or funds, and the counsel states he has no further instructions, although the situation may be drawn into the express words of O 17, R. 3, it ought to be treated as a default by the plff. for want of appearance under O. 17, R. 2, for the counsel no longer represents him and in that sense the Counsel is not present, while the plff. himself is absent. Held on the facts of the case, the dismissal was under O. 17, R. 3. Per Piggott, J.—The plffs. not being present and the pleader having said, he had no instructions to do anything further in the case left the court, a point had been reached at which it was literally true that the plffs. were absent neither appearing in person nor by counsel authorised to act on their behalf. Rules 2 and 3 of O. 17 of the Civ. Pro. An order dismissing a suit on an adjourned hearing after summonses had been duly served on the witnesses, on the pleader saying "no instructions" is an order under R. 2 and not under R. 3 of O. 17. ———O. 17, R. 3 and O. 9, R. 13—Pleader unable to proceed—Decree not necessarily ex parte.

At the hearing of a suit the defendant being absent the trial court proceeded under O. 17, R. 3 on the merits and decreed it. The defendant applied to have the decree set aside but the application was rejected. He then appealed from the order and the decree. The appellate court dismissed the former appeal but declared in the case of the second that the trial court had no power to decide the case on the merits in the absence of the defendant and that the decree was only an ex parte decree. Held, the order of the appellate court in the latter appeal was both in substance and in form open to question. By the pleader saying that he was unable to proceed with the hearing, it cannot be said that the pleader had withdrawn himself; and the decree passed in that suit cannot therefore be regarded as an ex parte decree which could be set aside in the manner laid down in O. 9, R. 13. In form the order passed by the lower court was similarly open to objection. It was not open to the Judge, who heard the appeals, to take the view that the decree was an ex parte decree after he had dismissed the appeal which had been filed from an order refusing to set it aside, on the ground that the decree was one dealing with the suit on the merits. If he was satisfied that there was sufficient excuse for his absence, he could have passed an order setting aside the decree passed by the court of first instance and remanded the suit. If he was not satisfied that there was sufficient reason for his absence, it was still necessary for him to have examined the suit on the merits and determined whether the decree passed by the court of first instance was proper or not. ———O. 17, R. 3—Process fee paid in time —Service not effected—Adjournment granted, is not time granted to a party within rule.

Held following 51 P.R. 1915, that where a party to a suit has paid the process fee for summoning witnesses, the Court and its officers are responsible for effecting service, and an adjournment caused by the non-attendance of witnesses for want of service is an adjournment in the ordinary course and does not amount to time granted to one party within the meaning of O. 17, R. 3, C.P.C. O. 17, R. 3 merely authorises the Court to proceed to decide the suit forthwith and it does not authorise its dismissal summarily. (Scott-Smith and Campbell, JJ.) KARAM CHAND v. JINDA RAM. 71 I.C. 862=1924 Lah. 404.

———O. 17, R. 3—No default by party— Court cannot proceed under this rule.

The hearing of a case was adjourned for a fortnight to enable plff. to summon his witnesses. Within a week of the hearing the plff. paid process fee but the officer of the Court finding the time to be short did not take out the summonses. On the day fixed for the hearing the Court dismissed the suit under O. 17, R. 3, C.P.C. Held that having regard to the negligence of the officer of the Court there was no room for the application of the stringent provisions of O. 17, R. 3, C.P. Code. (Shadi Lal, C.J. and Brasher, J.) LILA RAM v. RAMZAN. 69 I.C. 665=1924 Lah. 272.

———O. 17, R. 3—Dismissal for default— Evidence.

O. 17, R. 3 is an enabling and not a mandatory rule. At the first hearing of a suit certain defts. had not been served and the Court adjourned the case and directed issue of summons to absent defts. on receipt of process fees. Plff. took no action and on the date of hearing gave no reasons for his default but asked for indulgence. The Court dismissed the suit. Held, that under the circumstances R. 3, O. 17 was inapplicable and should not have been applied. (Petman, J.) SHER ALI v. MANGU. 52 I.C. 292=160 P R. 1919.

———O. 17, R. 3—Ex parte decree—Date not fixed for hearing of case but for producing a copy of document.

The defendants wanted stay of the case and they were ordered to produce a copy of a certain order on a date fixed by Court. On that date an ex parte decree was passed on failure of defendants to appear. An application to set aside ex parte decree was dismissed as barred by limitation. Held, that the Court was not competent to pass an ex parte decree when no order was passed fixing the date for trial and that the case should be heard on merits on the ———O. 17, R. 3—Scope of—Time granted— Default.

The strict provisions of O. 17, R. 3 cannot be invoked unless time has been granted to a party specifically for performing any of the acts mentioned therein and that party has commited a default in performance thereof. If a party has paid the process fee for summoning witnesses, the Court and its officers are responsible for effecting service and an adjournment caused by the non-attendance of witnesses for want of service is an adjournment in the ordinary course and does not amount to time granted to one party within the meaning of R. 3 of O. 17. The fact that the adjournment was utilized for another purpose does not convert it into time granted to the defendants within the purview of O. 17, R. 3. (Chevis and Shadilal, JJ.) According to O. 10, R. 1 a Court need not examine the parties on oath but it can do so if necessary. O. 18, R. 5 requires that a statement of a witness when recorded should be read out to him. This is for a double reason. Any mistake made by deponent or by the writer may be rectified and secondly a locus penetenti de is provided for a person who had made a false statement. The omission to read out a statement to a deponent deprives him of the locus penetential afforded by the reading out and such omission renders a conviction under S. 193, I.P.C., illegal altogether. ———O. 20, R. 2—Judgment written after transfer.

In the absence of an order of transfer of the case by a competent authority a Judge who is transferred has no power to deal with it. Per Raoof, J.—A judgment and decree passed by the trial Judge after his transfer from the District, cannot be said to be ultra vires. Per Chevis, J.—The validity of a judgment written after his transfer from the district, and after the Judge has ceased to exercise jurisdiction in respect of the case is doubtful. O. 20, R. 2 merely provides for the pronouncing of a valid judgment which the writer has been unable to deliver himself. (Chevis and Raoof, JJ.) KRISHNA BAI v. BUDHU RAM. 80 P.R. 1919=

———O. 20, R. 4—Judgments of Small Cause Court should contain reasons for decision.

As a matter of practice, it is usual even in cases tried by Courts of Small Causes, except in comparatively unimportant cases of everyday occurrence such as those for the recovery of petty debts, to say out the particulars of the suit and to give reasons for the decision arrived at, thus enabling the High Court, in revision, to satisfy itself that the decree or order was according to law without the necessity of perusing the whole record.

In cases falling within O. 20, R. 12 of the C. P. The order ascertaining the several parties interested in the property to be divided and their several rights therein, though treated as a decree in practice and styled as such, was not a preliminary decree but was only an interlocutory order. On an interlocutory application made by plaintiff in a suit for partition under the Code of 1882, for appointment of a commissioner and for the taking of other necessary steps in the suit in pursuance of the order ascertaining the several parties interested in the suit property and their several rights therein, the court passed an order negativing the plaintiff's right to profits in his share of the properties on the ground that the preliminary decree did not award to him such profits though he had prayed for them in the plaint. Held that the order was not appealable, being an interlocutory order and that the plaintiff was not therefore precluded in his appeal from the final and only decree in the suit from contesting its validity. Adjustment and Uncertified Adjustment.

——O. 21, R. 2—Uncertified Adjustment—Recognition.

An adjustment of a decree not certified to Court cannot be recognised by the Court executing the decree. (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) TAJ SINGH v. JAGAN LAL. 38 All. 289 = 38 I.C. 234 = 14 A.L.J. 370.

——O. 21, Rr. 2 and 16—Adjustment—Rights of assignee of decree—Recognition of assignment—Payment by judgment-debtor not certified to Court—Recognition of.

Whether attachment proceedings are already commenced at the instance of the decree-holder or not, the assignee or transferee of the decree cannot continue any proceedings previously commenced, nor can he institute any fresh proceedings for the execution of the decree unless he makes an application under O. 21, R. 16 to the Court which passed the decree. That application will be heard by the Court not as a Court executing the decree, but as a Court which passed the decree, and until on order is made by the Court which passed the decree that execution may proceed at the instance of the transferee, it is not open to the transferee to execute the decree, nor is there any Court which is executing the decree. The provisons of O. 21, R. 2 (3) would not be applicable as that only enacts that a payment or adjustment, which has not been certified or recorded as aforesaid should not be recognised by any Court executing the decree. When an application is made to the Court which passed the decree by a transferee or assignee of the decree from the original decree-holder under O. 21, R. 16 the application is made to the Court as a Court which passed the decree, and not as a Court which is executing the decree; and it is open to the judgment-debtor to plead that the claim has already been satisfied even though the formalities prescribed by O. 21, R. 2 (1) and (2) have not been followed. 35 M. 659; 40 M. 296, Ref. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 21, R. 2—Adjustment and Uncertified Adjustment.

——O. 21, R. 2—Uncertified adjustment—Question relating to execution — Power to recognise—Fraud.

The provisions of O. 21, R. 2 (3) are not to be rendered nugatory by the application of the general provisions of S. 47, C.P. Code. O. 21, R. 2, C.P. Code, was enacted to prevent the courts being flooded with false defences to applications for execution setting up a payment or adjustment in part or in whole, which would be made merely to gain time. The decree-holder is bound to certify an adjustment, and the judgment-debtor is also given a right to apply to the court to certify an adjustment. If the adjustment be not certified, it is entirely the fault of the judgment-debtor, and he does not deserve the consideration of the Court if he fails to make the very ordinary precaution of seeing that payment or adjustment made by him is certified to the Court. There is no reason why this should not apply also in the case of an alleged fraud. (Robinson, C.J. and Macgregor, J.) P.R.P.L. CHETTY FIRM v. G. LON. POU.

——O. 21, R. 2 (3)—Adjustment—Private satisfaction.

The embargo under that rule is limited to a "court executing the decree". There would be no prohibition in case where a court, which was not executing the decree was dealing with the matter. (Duckworth, J.) MA MA GYI v. MA NYO PO AND ANOTHER. 1 Bur. L.J. 171=1923 Rang. 44 (1).

——O. 21, R. 2—Uncertified adjustment—Whether can be recognised by executing Court.

An executing Court has no power to recognise a payment or adjustment made out of Court and not duly certified; neither can such a Court enquire into such payment where the time allowed to an application under Art. 174, Lim. Act, has expired. (Shaw, J.C.) SAYYID MUHAMMAD NUR v. KO LAW PAN.

——O. 21, R. 2—Uncertified adjustment—If can be recognised.

An uncertified adjustment cannot be recognised by the Court but a written statement of judgment-debtor alleging such an adjustment should be treated as an application under O. 21, R. 2 and disposed of according to law. (Twomey, J.) U PO THALING v. MAUNG BA U.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 21, R. 2—Adjustment and Uncertified Adjustment.

———O. 21, R. 2 (3)—Uncertified adjustment—Executing Court not entitled to recognise.

Under R. 2 (3) of O. 21 of the C.P. Code a Court cannot recognise the payment and adjustment of a decree out of Court unless such payment is certified by it. The question of payment is, however, a question which the Court executing the decree must, under S. 47 of the Code, inquire into and decide. (Pratt, J.C. and Fawcett, A.J.C.) The provisions of O. 21, R. 2 of the C.P.C., 1908, are not confined to money decrees. "Any" decree is provided for. A decree may provided for the payment of money or for any kind of relief other than the payment of money. But if either money is paid or the decree is otherwise adjusted, then the payment or adjustment must be certified. The principle of the rule is that the Court executing the decree shall not be troubled with any disputes between parties with regard to any payment or adjustment unless the same has been duly recorded and certified. If there is a case of fraud, then the party defrauded will have his right of action. (Macleod, C.J. and Shah, J.) GHARRY v. GOWRYA. 46 Bom. 226 = 23 Bom. A decree-holder not certifying an adjustment and again realising the money in execution of decree is liable in a suit in damages for repayment of the amount realised. The cause of action is either the breach of a promise or the breach of a statutory duty to certify. If however the decree-holder transfers the decree after such adjustment and the assignee executes the decree he is not liable to repay the decretal amount realised in execution of decree even though he has knowledge of the adjustment, for there is no privity of contract between the parties. ———O. 21, R. 2—Enquiry—Scope of—Adjustment of decree—Meaning of—Transaction.

An adjustment of a decree is a transaction which extinguishes the decree as such in whole, or in part and results in a satisfaction of the whole or a portion of the decree in respect of the particular relief or reliefs granted by the decree. A transaction by which the parties agree to vary the mode by which the reliefs granted by the decree are to be realised in execution in that suit, or the time when the decree becomes executable, is not an adjustment of the decree but is a transaction which attempts to vary the terms of the decree, leaving the altered terms to stand in place of the terms of the decree so as to constitute a new executable decree. Enquiries in a suit or in execution proceedings should be confined to matters, the decision with reference to which could be taken advantage of, by parties to the proceedings in the suit or execution itself. S. 146 of the C.P. Code recognizes the validity of a transfer of a part of a decree and execution thereof by a transferee. O. 21, R. 16 is no bar to the application of the section. Such transferee is like a joint decree-holder and can, under O. 21, R. 15 protect his rights either by executing the decree himself or by joining or intervening in the execution by his transferor. An agreement by the transferee of part of a decree that the transferor shall conduct execution proceedings and may compromise the same as he thinks fit, only constitutes the transferor the agent of the transferee and the agency is revocable. The provisions of O. 21, R. 23, Sub-S. The non-service of notice under O. 21, R. 22 upon a defendant after he attains majority is, though it does not render the subsequent proceedings a nullity, a serious irregularity which, until met by a valid defence, is sufficient to set aside the subsequent sale in execution. The burden is on the decree-holder to make out such a defence. One such defence might be established by proving that the defendant's interests were fully represented, to the knowledge of the defendant, by some other party to the proceedings. The issue of an attachment before the service of the notice issued under O. 21, R. 22 of the Code of Civil Procedure, is, in the absence of any sufficient cause justifying an apprehension that the property sought to be attached would be removed or transferred, a mere irregularity and the execution proceeding is not thereby rendered invalid. ——O. 21, R. 32—Injunction—Meaning of—Order to furnish account.

An order to furnish an account which was contained in a preliminary decree, is not an injunction within O. 21, R. 32. The word "injunction" as used in O. 21, R. 32 has a more extended meaning than it has in the Specific Relief Act. It is not every order of a Court directing a person to do a certain act, that is an injunction. In its essence an injunction is a relief consequential upon an infringement of a legal right. ——O. 21, R. 33—Decree for restitution of conjugal rights — Execution — Detention in prison should not be ordinarily ordered.

Ordinarily a court passing a decree for restitution of conjugal rights against a wife ought, under O 21, R. 33 of the Code, direct that the decree shall not be executed by the detention of the wife in prison. The fact that the wife had already been in jail under the sentence of a Criminal Court and that it would be no violence to her feelings to be sent to jail if she disobeys the decree is no ground to refuse to exercise the discretion to be exercised by the court under R. 33. The word 'default' used in O. 21. R. 57 of the C.P. Code is not restricted to default of the appearances or matters of that description. It means a failure to do what the decree-holder was bound to do, that is, to go on with his application and have the property sold. Held, also that where the decree-holder admitted that certain property had been sold by mistake and agreed to make a fresh application for execution but did not do so, there was default on his part. 38 Cal. 482, Foll.; 34 I.C. 240 and 39 Cal. 300, Dist. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 21, R. 57—Dismissal of Execution.

———O. 21, R. 56—Dismissal of execution—Effect of.

Per Abdur Rahim, J., Whether the dismissal or striking off an execution proceeding has or has not the effect of putting an end to the attachment is one of intention to be determined upon the circumstances of such case. Per Oldfield, J. The mere fact that an order on an execution application worded "dismissal" is not decisive and the order will be treated as merely suspensory if the circumstances of the case justify the presumption that such was the Court's real intention. The circumstances of each case, the intention of Court and the parties should determine whether an order dismissing an application under this rule amounts to such an adjudication as prevents an attachment from subsisting. Under O. 21, R. 57, which has to be strictly construed, an attachment shall cease only if the application for execution has been dismissed for default of the decree-holder who has to put in a fresh application in such a case. In all other cases of dismissal, the Courts will have to decide on the facts of each case, whether the order dismissing the application amounted to an adjudication on it, so as to prevent attachment from subsisting, e.g., a dismissal of an application on the sale being stayed, pending an appeal has not the effect of removing the attachment. 15 I.C. 49, Foll; 9 I.C. 558. the execution proceedings in which the decree-holder was to get rateable distribution in the Court of Munsif, had been consigned to records, the present application also was consigned to records for want of execution. Held, that it was not an order of dismissal under R. 57 because there was no default on the part of the decree-holder and the order did not discharge the attachment made by the Subordinate Judge; only a dismissal for default, puts an end to the attachment. A decree-holder in execution of a decree attached the properties of the judgment-debtor but subsequently accepted a payment made by him towards the satisfaction of the decree and agreed to give time for payment of balance of the decree amount. Thereupon the Court dismissed the application after recording the part-payment. Held that the effect of the dismissal of the execution application was to put an end to the attachment and that the dismissal was due to default of the decree-holder. No doubt the Court has no power to dismiss an application for execution unless there is default on the part of the decree-holder but, as has been held, default means a failure to do what one is legally bound to do. ——— O. 21, Rr. 58 and 63—Effect of order—Order on, notifying claim to intending bidders without investigating, it is improper—Limitation Act, Art. 11 does not apply.

Plaintiff preferred a claim to property attached in execution of a decree obtained against another, stating that the judgment-debtor was entitled only to a share in the said property, and that he was entitled to the other moiety. The claim was disposed of by an order which, after reciting plaintiff's contention ran as follows: "Whatever right the defendant has will pass by the sale. The petition does not require any further investigation. The claim put forward by the petitioner will be noted in the sale proclamation." The sale was held and the decree-holder himself became the purchaser. In a suit brought by the plaintiff for the recovery of his half share of the property from the decree-holder purchaser held (1) that the order on the claim petition was an improper one; (2) that it was not, however, an order against the claimant (plaintiff) within the meaning of O. 21, R. 63, C.P.C., and the suit instituted more than a year from the date thereof was not barred under Art. 11 of the Limitation Act. ———O. 21, Rr. 58 and 63—Effect of order—Claim by mortgagee—Adverse order declining to adjudicate does not bar—Suit for enforcing mortgage—Limitation—Conversion of mortgaged property into money—Effect of.

Property mortgaged to plaintiff was attached and brought to sale in execution by the defendant. On the day fixed for the sale, the plaintiff preferred a claim petition that the sale proceeds should be kept in court deposit to satisfy his mortgage and not be paid over to the defendant. The Court dismissed the application holding that as the sale had taken place it had no jurisdiction to hear the petition. In a suit by the plaintiff to enforce his mortgage and recover the mortgage money from the defendant the latter pleaded that the suit was barred by Arts. 11 and 62 of the Limitation Act. Held, by the Chief Justice (agreeing with Spencer, J.) (1) that there was no order negativing the claim of the plaintiff and his suit was not therefore barred by art. 11 of the Limitation Act and (2) that the suit was one to enforce a mortgage and was governed by art. 132 and not by art. 62 of the Limitation Act, though the mortgaged property had been converted into money as a result of the court sale. 41 M. 985 (F.B.), dist. 41 C. 654 (P.C.), Rel. Certain property of the judgment-debtor was attached in execution of a decree. His mother applied to raise the attachment on the ground that it was in her possession and that she was entitled to a life interest in it and that there was a charge therein for a certain sum to be paid by the brothers for her funeral ceremonies after her death. The property was eventually sold subject to her charge and purchased by the plff. After the mother's death the plff sued to recover the judgment debtor's share in the property; the judgment debtor and his brother contended that as there was no attachment of the property, the Court sale was void. The trial Court held that the sale was void even in the absence of attachment and allowed the plff. to recover his share by partition. One of the brothers alone appealed with the result that the sale was declared to be void in consequence of the absence of attachment. Held,

———O. 21, R. 63—Valuation of suit——Jurisdiction.

In suits under S. 283, C. P.C., (1882) the question of jurisdiction must be determined entirely on the nature of the relief sought. Where the right to maintain the attachment as between the claimant and the decree-holder is all that is in dispute, the value of the suit is the decretal amount. But if the claimant's title against both the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor concerning the whole property is in question then the value of the suit is the value of the property. Whether the judgment-debtor confesses judgment or denies the claim and it is decided after contest is immaterial. This, however, does not cover a case where the judgment-debtor, though a pro forma party, has no interest in the decision; but a confession of judgment is not absence of interest. As the latter did not attend on the date fixed, the terms of the sale proclamation were settled ex parte. The judgment-debtor, applied for the release of property. The decree holder raised the question of res judicata as the question of the liability of the property had been decided on the hearing of the application for settling the terms of the sale proclamation ; Held, that, notice to judgment-debtor to be present at the settlement of the terms of the proclamation cannot be regarded as raising the question of the liability of the property to be attached and therefore it cannot be said, that the judgment-debtor was invited to object to that attachment. Per Kumarasami Sastri, J.—Though O. 21, R. 71, does not expressly provide for the issue of notice to the defaulting purchaser, it is the duty of the Court to give him notice and to hear and decide on his objections before it orders execution to issue against him. The objections which a defauling purchaser can urge under R. 71 are only those which can be urged in an application to set aside a sale under O. 21. The re-sale should be in a reasonable time after the first sale and the property re-sold should be substantially the same and that any difference will not matter if the difference in the condition of the property or title thereto, is one which would occur in the ordinary course of things, having regard either to the nature of the property or transactions in respect thereof having legal force at the date of sale or was brought about by the first purchaser's default. Applicability.

———O. 21, R. 89—Applicability of—Partition suit—Award of arbitrators directing sale of properties and payment out of proceeds—Sale can be set aside on deposit.

In a partition suit instituted on the Original side of the High Court, the disputes between the parties were referred to arbitration under orders of the Court. The arbitrators made an award directing the sale of one of the properties which were the subject-matter of the suit and the payment of the common debts as well as of certain sums to the plaintiff. A decree was passed in terms of the award and the Registrar of the High Court sold the properties in terms of the award. The defendants applied with the plaintiff's consent for setting aside the sale under O. 21, R. 89, C.P.C. and it was contended that those provisions did not apply to the case. Held, that the sale was in enforcement of a decree on the award and the provisions of O. 21, R. 89, C.P.C. were applicable. Deposit.

———O. 21, R. 89—Deposit—Legality of—Improper refusal to set aside sale—Interference in revision.

Two creditors A and B obtained a decree against a common debtor and A attached his properties. B applied for rateable distribution. A proclamation of sale was issued, ordering the sale of the judgment-debtor's property for the recovery of the decretal amount due to A. The judgment-debtor paid A's decree in full and the appellate Court stayed execution of the decree and sale. The Court below in disregard of the order of the appellate Court held the sale and the property was knocked down at a certain sum. The judgment-debtor tendered to the Court within 30 days the amount due on B's decree with the addition of 5 per cent. The amount deposited was more than that specified in the sale proclamation but short of a few rupees so far as B's decree was concerned. Held that the deposit was good under O. 21, R. 89 and the sale should have been set aside. Where the lower Court improperly refuses to set aside an execution sale under O 21, R. 89, C.P.C. the High Court can interfere in revision. (Piggott and Walsh, JJ.) Order 21, rule 92, C.P. C, nowhere speaks of the auction-purchaser being made a party. It provides that no sale can be confirmed or set aside unless notice of application has been given to all persons affected thereby, and the rule means that the Court is incompetent to make any order at all, till such notice has been given. The duty of moving the Court to issue notices lies of course upon the applicant and all that the Court has to do is to give him reasonable opportunity for doing so. On default, the Court may dismiss the application, and there is no obligation upon the Court to issue a notice of its own motion but without the assistance of the applicant. The law requires that the application to deposit should be made within 30 days of the sale. But it does not impose any period of limitation for the issue of notice. (Mullick and Bucknill, JJ.) MT. Appeal.

——O. 21, R. 90—Appeal—Execution sale—Order refusing to set aside.

An order of the High Court refusing to set aside an execution sale is a final order and is appealable to Privy Council. (Lord Moulton.) TEKAIT KRISHNA PRASAD SINGH v. MOTI CHAND. 40 Cal. 635=40 I.A. 140=17 C.W.N. 637=(1913) M.W.N. 487=11 A.L.J. 517=15 Bom. L.R. 515=17 C.L.J. 573=14 M.L.T. 37=19 I.C. 295=25 M.L.J. 140. (P.C.).

——O. 21, R. 90 and O. 43, R. 1 (j)—Appeal—Second appeal—Application to set aside sale for fraud—Dismissal of.

The New Code has altered the law in an important aspect inasmuch as an application based on fraud in publishing or conducting a sale comes within the purview of O. 21, R. 90, and not under S. 47. There is no second appeal from an order passed on an application to set aside the execution sale on the ground of fraud. (Richards, C. J. and Banerjee, J.) SHEO PRASAD SINGH v. MOSSAMAT PREMA KUAR. 40 All. 122=43 I.C. 523=15 A.L.J. 920.

——O. 21, R. 90, S. 2 and O. 43, R. 1 (c)—Appeal—Dismissal for default—Refusal to set aside.

An application to set aside a sale is a proceeding leading to an adjudication such as is referred to in S. 2 and so it is a suit within O. 43, R. 1 (c). There is an appeal from an order refusing to set aside a dismissal for default. (Teunon and Newbould, JJ.) BHUBAN BEHARI NAG v. DHIRENDRA NATH. 33 I.C. 581=20 C.W.N. 1203.

——O. 21, Rr. 90 and 92—Appeal—Fraud—Old Code and New.

The dismissal order in an application to set aside an execution sale on the ground of fraud or material irregularity, was a decree under the Old Code, and hence an appeal lay if passed while the Old Code was in force. Under the New Code it is a mere order under O. 21, Rr. 90 and 92. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) LAL BIHAR MITRA v. NAGENDRA NATH CHATTERJEE. 16 I.C. 690=22 C.L.J. 266.

——O. 21, R. 90—Appeal—Second appeal—Order under.

Old Code allowed sale to be impeached upon the ground of fraud under S. 244, and a second appeal lay, but under New Code it is done under O. 21, R. 90; and S. 104 read with O. 43, Cl. (j) makes it clear that no second appeal lies in this case. (Carnduff and Chapman, JJ.) BENODE BEHARI BHADRA v. RAM SARUP CHAMAR. 15 I.C. 679=16 C.W.N. 1015.

——O. 21, Rr. 90 and 92—Appeal—Second appeal—Fraud—Application to set aside sale on ground of fraud.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 21, R. 90—Appeal.

Unlike the Code of 1882 O. 21, R. 90 includes the case of fraud as well, and so S. 104 read with O. 43, Cl. (j) provides only for a first appeal and not a second appeal. Under the Old Code an application to set aside a sale on the ground of fraud did not come under S. 311 and so was attracted to S. 244 (corresponding to S. 47) and therefore a second appeal was allowed. (Woodroffe and Carnduff, JJ.) BISSONATH RAI v. KAMALESHWARI PRASAD SINGH.

Where an auction sale is sought to be set aside on the ground that no notice was served as required by O. 21, R. 22, but the Court finds no such notice was necessary, the order does not fall under S. 47 and hence there is no second appeal. Defective Attachment.

——O. 21, R. 90—Defective attachment—Omission to attach.

The mere fact that there has been no attachment or that there is a defect in the attachment does not render an execution sale a nullity. It is a mere irregularity. 64 I.C. 420; 18 M, 437; 30 M, 255, Ref. (Hallifax, A.J.C.) SHANKER RAO v. MAWK RAO.
68 I.C. 853=1923 Nag. 18.

——O. 21, R. 90—Defective attachment—Material irregularity—Sale within 30 days of the proclamation—Effect of.

The failure to attach the property before sale although an irregularity under the C.P. Code does not render the sale null and void. 18 C. 188; 34 C. 787; 21 A. 311, Ref. The object of the attachment is to bring the property under the control of the Court with a view to preventing the judgment-debtor from alienating it and the requirement that the order of attachment should be publicly proclaimed is merely one of the requirements of law for perfecting the attachment. The main object of the proclamation of the order is to give publicity to the fact that the sale of the particular property attached is in contemplation and to warn all persons against taking a transfer of it from the judgment-debtor to the prejudice of the rights of the decree holder. It is difficult to see why the absence of attachment which is primarily in the interests of the decree-holder can prejudice the rights of the judgment-debtor who has due notice of the sale. A Court has jurisdiction to sellproperty without attachment. Where property is sold within 30 days of the proclamation the irregularity does not render the sale void without proof of the substantial injury thereby to the judgment-debtor. 21 C. 66 foll. Description of Property.

——O. 21, Rr. 90 and 66—Description of property—Misleading description—Incumbrances.

The particulars of a sale, at a Court's auction, mentioning subsequent mortgages but not stating clearly that the property is to be sold subject to them are misleading and the sale must be set aside. Court must be scrupulous in the extreme in the conduct of contract sales and must not fall below the standard of honesty which it exacts from the parties. It should refuse to enforce against a purchaser misled by its duly accredited agents into an illusory or unconscionable bargain. (Martin, J.) CHINNA BAI v. DHULA KUPPA.

——O. 21, R. 90—Description of property—Material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale—Judgment-debtor owning share in the house—Whole house sold.

A sale in execution of a decree cannot be set aside unless material irregularity in publishing or conducting the sale is established. Where a judgment-debtor owned ½ the share in the house and the whole house was sold, it was held that it could not be assumed that the price realised was less than what could have been obtained if

——O. 21, Rr. 90, 66 and 67—Description of property— Execution sale—Irregularity in proclamation.

The mere fact that certain fields were in a proclamation of sale by mistake included in the lands mentioned in the first of the four lots advertised for sale whereas they should have been entered in the second, is not of itself such an irregularity as to afford good ground for setting aside the sale. ——O. 21, R. 90—Description of property —Wrong khasra number.

Khasra numbers are subordinate descriptions of a holding for purposes of identification. When an entire holding is sold in execution of a rent decree obtained in respect of the holding the giving of wrong numbers of the plot will not vitiate the sale. (Sharfuddin and Roe, JJ.) C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 21, R. 90—Execution Sale.

——O 21, R. 90—Execution sale—Setting aside—Remedy by suit—Decree against member of joint Hindu family—Sale of his share of the property in execution.

Where in execution of a decree obtained against some members of a joint Hindu family property of the family is sold it is open to any other member of the family having an interest in the property and not being bound by the decree, to institute a suit to set aside the sale and recover possession of the property without applying to set aside the sale under O. 21, R. 90 of the C. P. Code. (Das and Kulwant Sahay, JJ.) MEDNI PRASAD SINGH v. NAND KESHWAR PRASAD SINGH. 2 P. 386 = 1923 P. 481.

——O. 21, R. 90—Execution sale—Application to set aside—Deposit of decree amount—Deposit subject to condition subsequently withdrawn—Effect.

On the 22nd December 1920 a sale of a certain property took place in execution of a certain decree obtained by the opposite party as against the petitioners. On the 21st January 1921 the petitioners applied for setting aside the sale under the provisions of O. XXI, R. 90, Civil Procedure Code. On the 23rd January 1921 the parties entered into a compromise, the terms of the compromise being that if the judgment-debtor paid the sum of Rs. 2,695 to the decree-holders on or before the 23rd September 1921 the sale would be set aside, but that if the sum of Rs. 2,695 was not paid to the decree-holders within the time allowed, the application for setting aside the sale would stand dismissed and the sale would be confirmed. On the 19th September 1921 the petitioners deposited the sum of Rs. 2,695 in Court and invited the Court to set aside the sale. The petitioners also applied to the Court that the money should not be paid to the decree-holders until the decision of a regular suit which the judgment-debtors were about to institute against the decree-holders. It appears that such a suit was in fact instituted on the 24th September 1921. On the 23rd September 1921 the decree-holders filed a petition praying that the sale should not be set aside as the deposit made by the judgment-debtors was a conditional deposit which had in effect prevented them withdrawing the money from Court. Held the deposit was a conditional one. It is one thing to make that deposit subject to one condition; it is another to make the deposit and to apply to the Court that the party entitled to withdraw the money from Court should not withdraw it until a particular decision is reached in a particular case. The judgment debtors through their leaders intimated to the Court that they would not object to the money being withdrawn by the decree-holders, and, as a matter of fact, they took up that position before the decree-holders

——O. 21, R. 90—Execution sale—Absence of attachment—Sale not a nullity—Application to set aside.

An execution sale held without attachment of the property or with a defective attachment does not render the sale void but materially irregular. An application to set aside the sale on that ground is governed by S. 47, C. P. Code and not under O. 21, R. 90. (Lentaigne, J.) MA PWA v. MAHOMED TAMBI.

Separate applications by different judgment-debtors, for setting aside an execution sale, can be consolidated and tried together. A wilful mis-statement by a decree-holder in the sale proclamation of the value of the property may be sufficient evidence in particular cases to justify an inference of fraud. Where certain facts are found and an inference of fraud is drawn based upon facts so found it is open to the Court in second appeal to consider whether as a matter of law such an inference is justified by the facts found. If however the first appellate Court, which is the ultimate judge of fact, refuses to draw and inference of fraud upon the facts found by it that decision cannot be questioned in second appeal unless the facts found necessarily amount to fraud. ———O. 21, R. 90—Publication of sale—Defects in—Application to set aside sale.

Where the objections of a judgment-debtor to a sale held in execution are such as had been or might have been taken in the proceedings for framing the proclamation of sale of which the judgment-debtor had notice, the Court will not set aside the sale on these grounds. Under O. 21, R. 67 read with O 21, R. 54, C.P. Code, it is necessary that an execution sale of an enfranchised srotriem village should be published at the Collector's Office. The judgment-debtor applied to set aside an execution sale on the ground that the sale was not proclaimed in the village or published at the Collector's Office. The Court dismissed the application holding that the same objections had been inquired into and decided against the petitioner at an earlier stage of the execution proceedings before the sale was concluded. Held that there was no provision of law authorising the investigation of the objections in question before the conclusion of the sale and that the previous decision was not res judicata. The annual income realised from a property was over Rs. 1,000 and the valuation stated in the sale proclamation was Rs. 2,500. The property was sold for Rs. 2,500 and consisted of a right of fishing in a river which was about 20 miles long and it was described merely by a tauzi number and a name though the right ran through as many as 138 villages. Held that the sale proclamation was materially irregular both in the description of the property and the valuation put upon it, and the sale was liable to be set aside. In the case of such a property any particular spot on the river is not a conspicuous part of the property. The

It is not safe to infer that the inadequacy of the price realised at an auction is due to under-valuation in the sale proclamation for bidders have their own means of finding out the value of the property. Where property is sold to a decree-holder in the absence of other holders an under-valuation causes a serious prejudice to the judgment-debtor and if it is clearly proved that the decree-holder has secured the property at a very low price in consequence of the fraudulent under-valuation, the sale should be set aside. ———O. 21. R. 91—Execution sale—Setting aside—Suit at the instance of a third party—Revival of execution proceedings.

Two lots of property were sold in execution of a money decree. Out of which No. 1, the decree-holder bought. Afterwards a third person sued the decree-holder. He was the auction-purchaser of lot No. 1. He also sued the judgment-debtor for a declaration of title to lot No. 1 and possession. He obtained a decree. Its result was that the sale became invalid regarding lot No 1. The sale of lot No. 2 was also set aside at the desire of the judgment-debtor under the provisions of O. 21, R 90, C.P.C. After this the decree-holder executed his decree for the entire decretal amount. The judgment-debtor raised objections that the execution petition was barred by time. The only remedy to get back the price of lot No. 1 was to submit an application under O. 21, R. 91, C.P.C. to have the sale annulled. Otherwise that price cannot be recovered. Held: Both the judgment-debtor and the decree holder were parties to the suit and hence the order binds them. The execution Court need not abrogate the order. (Mullick and Bucknill, JJ.) RADHA KISHEN LAL v. KASHI LAL. 2 Pat. 829=1 Pat. L.R. 368=1923 Pat. 352=76 I.C. 927=5 Pat L.T. 345=1924 P. 278.

If a purchaser at an execution sale has bought a property the title to which is defective or in he has been misled on account of fraud or omission on the part of the decree-holder it is open to him to seek his remedy as the law allows. But there is no reason why a Court should interfere on behalf of the auction-purchaser and set aside the sale simply because an auction-purchaser has bought a bad title. Every man buys at an auction sale with his eyes open and the general principle that an auction-purchaser cannot attack his own purchase except on the ground that the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property must apply. There is no warranty in a Court-sale that the judgment-debtor has any saleable interest in the property. If the judgment-debtor has no saleable interest in the property, the auction-purchaser must apply within 30 days to set aside the sale under O. 21, R 91. He has no remedy by a regular suit against the judgment-debtor to recover his purchase-money. If he fails so to do and the amount of the sale-proceeds is credited towards the decree; he cannot ask the Court to treat the sale as a nullity and to allow him to execute his decree in respect of the sum represented by the sale-proceeds. The decree must therefore be deemed to have been satisfied to the extent of the amount of the sale-proceeds. (Maung Kin, J.) U. PAW v. N. R. M. A. CHETTY.

Where a Court sale in execution of a decree is not vitiated by fraud on the part of the judgment-debtor or the decree-holder, the purchaser buys at his own risk and there is no warranty of title or guarantee that the property will answer to the description. In sales under the direction of the Court, Courts must be scrupulous in the extreme to see that no taint or touch of fraud or deceit or misrepresentation is found in the conduct of its ministers. When owing to a mistake in the proclamation of sale a larger area was advertised for sale than was actually sold, the auction-purchaser can sue either for a refund of a proportionate part of the purchase-money or for a cancellation of the sale. He can sue for either of the two reliefs, and would be entitled to the first if he can prove that the price paid by him is in excess of the fair value of the property and that he was induced to pay that price by the misdescription in the sale proclamation. The general principle of caveat emptor would affect the purchaser unless he chooses to adopt the remedy given to him by the statute. Execution Sale.

———O. 21, Rr. 94 and 92—Execution sale—What passes under—Certificate of sale in respect of property not attached—Setting aside.

What is sold at a judicial sale of immoveable property in execution of a money decree can be nothing but the property attached and that property is conclusively described in and by the schedule to the order of attachment. Where an existing property is accurately described in the schedule, a certificate of sale cannot be issued in respect of a different property, treating the case as one of misdescription when it is really one of identity. The fact that the property was described in the Calcutta Gazette in a different way from the attachment order, only vitiates the sale. If by mistake the wrong property was attached and an order made to sell it, the only course open to the decree-holder, on discovery of the mistake, is to commence the execution proceedings over again. A suit for cancellation of a sale held under the Putni Regulation was decreed in the court of first instance, upon appeal by the two Zamindars (defendants) that judgment was reversed and the suit was dismissed. The plaintiff thereupon appealed to the High Court. They joined as respondents three sets of persons, viz., (1) the auction-purchaser, (2) the two Zamindars and (3) the persons alleged to be joint tenants in the putni. During the pendency of the second appeal in the High Court the executor to the estate of one of the Zamindar respondents, died on the 10th June 1916. The plaintiffs, it is now asserted, were not aware of this circumstance and the auction-purchaser as also the other Zamindar respondents were equally ignorant of the event. The result was that on the 31st January 1917, when the appeal was taken up for final disposal in this Court, the hearing proceeded on the assumption that all the parties were properly represented on the record. The appeal was heard, the decree of the lower appellate Court was set aside and the case was remanded for reconsideration. When the case went before the District Judge, he was informed on the 20th December 1917, that one of the Zamindar defendants had died during the pendency of the appeal in the High Court and that the representative in interest of that Zamindar was not bound by the order of remand made by the High Court. Thereupon the District Judge held that the appeal could not be reheard by him. Held, the order of the High Court was not a nullity by reason of the death of one of the respondents, that the High Court had jurisdiction to hear the appeal and that the District Judge should have reported the case for the orders of the High Court. ———O 22, Rr. 4, 5 and 9—Abatement—Substitution of parties.

Substitution can be made only after an abatement has been set aside on application under O. 22, R. 9 (2), C. P. Code. To set aside an abatement it is necessary to prove that the petitioner was prevented by sufficient cause from continuing the suit It is the duty of the person prosecuting a suit or an appeal to keep himself apprised of the adversary's death. A mere plea of ignorance of the death of an opposite party which took place many months or even years before is not a sufficient ground for setting aside the abatement. (Das and Macpherson, JJ.) The remedy given by S. 371, C. P. Code, 1882, (O. 22, R. 9) to apply for setting aside the abatement applies whether the abatement has been ordered under S. 366 (O. 22, R. 3) consequent on the death of the plff. or under S. 368 (O. 22, R. 4) consequent on the death of a deft. An order abating the suit, may be said to be really tantamount to a judgment in favour of the deft. and should not be made ex parte and without notice to the plff. The substitution of the legal representative of a deceased plff. or deft. at one stage of a suit, as for instance on an appeal from an interlocutory order in the suit, is effective for all future stages of the suit. S. 5 of the Limitation Act does not apply to an application for substitution filed beyond six months, but the remedy of the party after abatement is to apply to have it set aside on the ground that he was prevented by a suffioient cause, and to this S. 5, Limitation Act, will apply. ——O. 22, R. 10—Preliminary decree—Suit pending after—Addition of party.

Proceedings after a preliminary decree for sale or redemption till the final decree is passed, are proceedings in the suit, and the private purchaser of the property after such a decree acquires an interest which entitles him to be made a party to the suit. ——O. 22, R. 10—Assignment pending suit—Rights of assignee — Interlocutory order—Appeal.

The plaintiff in an administration suit assigned his interest to the applicant but continued the suit in his own name. The trial Court refused to appoint a Receiver of the property and the plaintiff appealed to the High Court. Pending the appeal, the plaintiff died and the assignee applied to the trial Court to continue the suit but did not apply in the High Court to continue the appeal whereupon the appeal abated. Held, that the trial Court had jurisdiction to entertain the application for bringing on record the assignee. Where the High Court sends for the records in an appeal from an interlocutory order the suit is still pending on the file of the trial Court and it has jurisdiction to bring on record the legal representative, of a deceased plaintiff. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 22, R. 10.

Where a suit is alleged to have been compromised and a document embodying the compromise has been field in Court, the suit does not cease to be pending until the passing of a decree. Consequently it is open to a person alleging himself to be the purchaser of the property before the compromise is entitled to apply under O. 22, R. 10, C.P. Code, to be added as a party to the suit. An applicant who invokes the aid of O. 22, R. 10 is not entitled as a matter of right to an order in his favour regardless of delay or laches. The Court undoubtedly has a discretion in the matter which must be judicially exercised. Where the result of dismissing the application would be to start a fresh suit between the transferee and the assignor impeaching the compromise as not bona fide, the enquiry might be made in the suit itself after the transferee is made a party. 32 C. 483; 13 C.L.J. 487; 43 M. 37; 37 A. 326, Ref. Code on the ground of assignment during the pendency of suit and it is disputed, the Court has power to decide that dispute. O. 22, R. 10 of the C.P. The absence of the words in S. 372, C.P.C., 1882, providing for service of notice in writing and hearing their objections in O. 22, R. 10 of the Code of 1908, does not justify the inference that an order for substitution may be made ex parte without notice and such an order made ex parte cannot be recalled even upon objection of parties interested. A judicial order which may possibly affect or prejudice any party cannot be finally made unless the party affected has had an opportunity of being heard. It is based on the plainest principles of justice. An order for substitution may be passed by consent of parties or after notice to all persons interested. It may be made ex parte but it can then be challenged by parties interested, such ex parte orders may be revoked at the instance of any party prejudiced thereby. No order for substitution should be made upon an application which is not supported by affidavit or is not verified. The position of the party substituted is exactly the same as that of the original person. (Mookerjee and Beachcroft, JJ.) AJANT SINGH v. SUNDAR MAL. 16 I.C. 567 = 17 C.W.N. 862.

Bar of Fresh Suit.

———O. 23, R. 1—Bar of fresh suit—Ejectment—Withdrawal without leave for fresh suit—Second suit after notice—Subject-matter.

Plff. first brought a suit for the ejectments of defts. who claimed to be permanent tenants on the allegation that they were not such and that he was entitled to determine the tenancy. There being no sufficient notice to quit, he withdrew the suit without leave. Having then given a formal notice to quit, the plff. brought a second suit for ejectment. Held, that the suit was not barred. The term "subject-matter" in the rule meant the series of acts of transactions alleged to exist giving rise to the relief claimed and the suits were not in respect of the same subject-matter as in the first suit the series of acts was incomplete owing to want of notice while in the second suit the series of acts was complete because of the notice to quit. The same result followed if the term "subject-matter" is used in the sense of the bundle of facts which have to be proved in order to entitle the plff. to relief. The causes of action in both suits were not the same as in the first suit there was no cause of action for want of notice and in the second suit the giving of notice constituted a cause of action. ———O. 23, R. 1 (3)—Bar of fresh suit—Subject-matter.

In O. 23, R. 1 (3) strict construction must be put on the term same "subject-matter." A second suit on a cause of action and relief different from those in the first which was withdrawn without permission cannot be a suit on the same subject-matter. ——— O. 23, R. 1 (2) (a) (b)—Formal defect—Other sufficient grounds—Ejusdem generis.

Leave to withdraw a suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit can only be given when the suit must fail by reason of some formal defect, or if there are other sufficient grounds for allowing the plff. to institute a fresh suit. The "sufficient grounds" contemplated in O. 23, R. 1 (2) of the C. P. Code (1908) should be grounds analogous to the grounds given in the first clause. It is not sufficient for the Court merely to record a vague opinion that there is a defect which may materially affect the decision. —— O. 23, R. 1—Grounds for—Additional evidence.

A trial Court dismissed the suit. On appeal, the Appellate Court coming to the conclusion that the plffs. had not produced important evidence recorded an order dismissing the appeal and then granted leave to the plffs. to withdraw the suit with liberty to bring a fresh suit on the same cause of action. Held, that the order of the Appellate Court was self-contradictory inasmuch the suit could not be allowed to be withdrawn after the dismissal of the appeal which would operate as res judicata between the parties in respect of all questions in controversy in the suit and the reason assigned did not justify an order under O. 23, R. 1, C.P.C., Cl. (b) must be read with Cl. (a) so that permission cannot be granted except on grounds which are of the same nature as those mentioned in Cl. (a). ——O. 23, R. 1—Grounds for—Non-joinder of parties—Powers of Appellate Court.

An Appellate Court cannot permit a plaintiff on appeal to withdraw his suit after decree has been passed against him by the trial Court without assigning any reasons. Mere non-joinder of parties is not a ground. Under the Code no suit can be dismissed for non-joinder of parties and the proper course is for the Appellate Court to add the necessary parties and dispose of the appeal in some lawful manner including remand, if necessary. 11 Mad. 322, Ref. Quaere:—Whether an appellate Court as such can permit the withdrawal of a suit. 27 M.L.J. 244, Doubted. ——O. 23, R. 1—Grounds for—Evidence—Wrong pedigree filed—Not a sufficient ground.

If a pedigree filed with the plaint was proved to be wrong according to the statement of the plff. it is not a sufficient ground to allow withdrawal of the suit with permission to bring a fresh one. (Stuart, A.J.C.) GULAB DEI v. PATAN DIN. 30 I.C. 351=2 O L.J. 461.

——O. 23, R. 1—Grounds for—Additional evidence.

——O. 23, R. 1—Grounds for—Improper grant of leave—Remedy of aggrieved party—Appeal—Revision—Suit.

The circumstances contemplated by O. 23, R. 1 of the Code are confined to those mentioned in Cls. (a) and (b) of R. 1, sub-r. (2) of the Order, and do not include a case where the Court making the order is not satisfied that the circumstances mentioned in cls. (a) or (b) exist. If the Court is not satisfied that the circumstances contemplated in the rule exist then it has no jurisdiction to make the order as the jurisdiction is only conferred where the court is so satisfied. If this condition is not fulfilled it is clear that the jurisdiction does not arise. In all cases where an order under the rule is made it must be presumed in the absence of proof to the contrary that the Court was satisfied that the conditions in one or other of the cls. (a) and (b) existed. Where the court had jurisdiction to make the order, it is not open to the Court in a subsequent suit to question the propriety of his decision, or to consider whether in fact there existed a formal defect or other sufficient ground for the order. Where jurisdiction is conferred to determine a particular question and the Court having jurisdiction determines it, the decision is binding upon the parties, whether right or wrong, until it is set aside by some process known to the law in that suit. This may be done either by review of judgment or by appeal or revision where such

When leave was granted to withdraw a suit on payment of costs, but no time was fixed for payment, the plff. could institute a fresh suit and make payment subsequently. ——O. 23, R. 1 and S. 115—Revision—Improper grant of leave.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 23, R. 1—Revision.

A Court ought to be very slow to give liberty to bring a fresh suit after a case has been heard out on the merits and an Appellate Court ought seldom or never to do so except when the application was made to the first Court and the Appellate Court thinks that it should have been granted. An order for costs in deft.'s favour does not compensate the latter for being sued a second time. It is for the trial Court to say if there are other sufficient grounds, within the meaning of O. 23, R. 1 of C.P.C. The High Court cannot interfere under S. 115, C.P.C., where the lower Court has jurisdiction to allow a withdrawal but makes a mistake of law. The fact that through the mistake of the writer who drew the plaint some important items were left out is no ground for permitting withdrawal with liberty to bring first suit. The rule does not lay down what the Court is to do if it finds that there has been no adjustment, compromise, or satisfaction. ———O. 26, R. 1—Examination of witnesses on commission—Grounds for.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 26, R. 1.

The Courts should not allow witnesses to be examined on commission without adequate reason. The grounds upon which the Courts can issue commission to examine witnesses are ordinarily those specified in O. 26, R. 1. (Batchelor, A.C.J. and Shah, J.) PANACHAND v. MANOHARALAL. 42 Bom. 136 = 43 I.C. 729 = 20 Bom. L.R. 1.

——O. 26, Rr. 1 and 4—"May," meaning of—Discretion to issue commission.

In the case of a witness not under the control of the party asking for a commission, who resides beyond the limits fixed under O. 16, R. 19 (b), a commission should issue as a matter of right, unless the Court is satisfied the party is merely abusing the Court's authority to issue process. It is not for the Court to decide whether the party will be benefited or not, as it is a matter entirely for the party. The word "may" in O. 26, Rr. 1 and 4 means "is given authority to". (Wallace, J.) JAGANNATHA SASTRY v. SARATHAMBAL AMMAL. 46 Mad. 574 = 17 L W. 251 = (1923) M W.N. 157 = 71 I.C. 530 = 44 M L.J. 202 = 1923 Mad. 321.

——O. 26, R. 1—Commission—When should be issued whether benefit to the party praying therefor should be considered.

The Court ought to issue commissions for the examination of witness at the instance of a party if all the conditions requisite therefor are fulfilled, irrespective of whether that party will be ultimately benefited thereby. (Abdul Rahim and Sundara Aiyar, JJ.) VIDYA PARNA v. SHETHAMMA. 12 I.C. 74 = 21 M.L J. 889.

——O. 26, R. 1—'Any person'—Plaintiff—Grounds for issuing commission.

The general rule is that evidence of a plaintiff in a case ought not to be taken on commission except for very strong reasons. Mere inconvenience or great distance from the Court to the plff.'s place of residence, is not a sufficient ground. (Rigg, J.) S.A. MUDALIAR v. ——O. 26, R. 4—Examination of witnesses—Rights of plaintiff and defendant—Discretion of Court—Interference—Revision.

Where an application is made by a defendant, who lawfully resides out of the jurisdiction of the Court, according to the ordinary course of his life and business, the Court will not regard the case with the same strictness as the case of the plaintiff who has instituted his suit in a forum of his choice though he resides beyond the jurisdiction of such Court. Ross v. Woodford, (1894) 1 Ch. 38 and New v Burns, 64 L.J.Q B. 104, Ref. In cases under O. 26, R. 4, C. P. Code, a distinction has been observed between an application by a plaintiff asking for a commission to examine himself and an application by a defendant asking for a commission to examine himself. O. 16, Rr. 19 and 21 apply to persons who are ordered to attend in person to give evidence, including persons who may be parties to a suit, but are required to give evidence as witnesses. They have no application to a case where a party to a suit desires to give evidence of his own motion in his own favour. Such a case is governed by O. 26, R. 4, C. P. Code; A Court of appeal should exercise great caution when invited to interfere with an order of the trial Court made with jurisdiction in the exercise of its discretion as to granting a commission. Each case depends on its own circumstances and no rule as to the exercise of that discretion could be laid down. If the Appellate Court deems that the discretion was wrongly exercised, if it deems that the case in all its bearings was not laid before the Court below, if it sees that the Court below misapprehended an important part of the case, the Court will interfere. The High Court in revision set aside the order of the lower Court, where that Court overlooked the distinction which should be observed in the treatment of an application by the defendant as distinguished from a similar application by the plaintiff, and ordered the defendant to be examined on commission on payment of costs to the plaintiff for cross-examination. (Mookerjee and Panton, JJ.) KUMAR SARAT KUMAR RAY v. RAM CHANDRA CHATTERJEE 35 C.L.J. 78 = 68 I.C. 9 = 1922 Cal. 42.

——O. 26, R. 4—Grounds for issuing commission.

The issue of a commission to examine a witness is a matter of judicial discretion and will not be granted unless the application is made bona fide, the issue in respect of which the evidence is required is one which the Court ought to try, that the witness to be examined would give evidence material to the issue and unless there are some good reasons why the witness cannot be examined in Court. In the case of firms carrying on business in different parts of the country or of the province some times constituted of the same people, some times constituted with the omission of one person who has no interest in a branch of business in one of the towns or with the addition of a new person who has an interest confined only to that branch of business, a Court should analyse the facts as thoroughly as ito an in order to determine whether the firms or persons so carrying on business are really the same legal entity or person in each place. A firm without being a branch in the sense that it is subordinate to and under the control of a firm in a different town and compelled to render an account to the latter, might still be in substance the same business so as to make it carry on business in its own place, if it is transacting the business of the different firm in its own place as agent for that firm, purchasing and selling goods and obtaining orders, forwarding or receiving orders to and from that firm and merely remunerating itself by being allowed to make a definite profit out of certain transactions or a limited profit out of all transactions. C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 30, R. 4.

An ex parte decree was obtained against a firm which had been sued in the firm name and served as such with the leave of Court, by registered post. It was alleged in an application to set aside the ex parte decree by the applicant that the summons was not duly served and that the firm had long ceased to carry on business as such firm but was being wound up by the applicant. Held, a suit can be brought against a firm in its firm name even if it be a dissolved firm provided only that the liability arose at a time when the firm was in existence. Under O. 30, R. 3, the only way in which such writ can be served is by serving it either upon a partner or by serving it at the principal place at which the partnership business is carried on in British India on a person having at the time of service the control or management of the partnership business. If rule 11 of Chapter VIII of the High Court Rules is applied, it is necessary that it should be so applied as to comply with O. 30, R. 3. (Rankin, J.) A guardian not formerly appointed by the Court if he has been recognised as acting on behalf of a minor and has not been guilty of negligence but has done all that can be done on behalf of the minor, the decree is binding on the minor and it cannot be set aside merely on the ground of non-compliance with O. 32, R. 3 (1) and (2) of C.P. Code. Where there has been no formal order of appointment, the Court has to look carefully into the proceedings and the decree can be held into, be binding, on the minor only if it appears that the case was properly conducted on his behalf. appointment is not necessarily fatal to the proceedings. Even an omission to serve the minors concerned or their mother personally was treated as mere irregularities covered by section 578 of the old Code of Civil Procedure and not errors fatal to the suit. The presumption is that the proceedings of the Court had been carried out regularly and in accordance with the law and this presumption is found stronger when it is found that an application and an affidavit such as is held in connection with the appointment of a person as guardian ad litem of a minor was on the record and that the guardian had subsequently appeared and filed a compromise on behalf of the minor to which the Court had accorded its sanction. ———O. 32. Rr. 3 and 4—Defective appointment—Ex parte decree—Suit to set aside.

A minor is not a party to the suit, unless he is represented in the record of the suit by a guardian competent to act as such. Where the record of the suit itself shows that the minor is wholly unrepresented or that he is represented by a guardian disqualified from acting as such guardian under express provision of the Statute the result is that the minor is not a party to the suit and a judgment rendered against the minor is without jurisdiction and is null and void. But where he is properly a party to the suit and he is properly a party if he is represented on the record by a guardian not disqualified from acting, the jurisdiction of the Court to try and determine the case against the minor is complete, and such jurisdiction will not be ousted even if the Court did not follow the appropriate procedure for the appointment of the guardian. It is the court that must decide the question of jurisdiction and where the record, on the face of it, shows that the minor was properly a party to the suit, the judgment rendered in such a suit will not be declared a nullity in a collateral proceeding brought to impeach its validity, though it may be set aside if it be shown that the defect or the irregularity in the proceedings affected the merits of the case between the parties. 30 C. 1021 followed; 15 C.L.J. 446; 25 C.W.N. 791 dissented; 32 C. 296 distinguished. The contravention of the provisions of O. 32, R. 4 Cl. 3, C.P. Code, does not deprive the Court of its jurisdiction to decide the case. The Court has no jurisdiction to render judgment against one who is not a party to the suit though it has jurisdiction to render judgment against one who is party to a suit but who has not been brought before it by reason of the failure on the part of the court to follow the particular procedure laid down in the Code. The one affects the existence of the jurisdiction of the Court; the other affects the exercise of it. (Das and Adami, JJ.) PANDE SATDEO NARAIN v. RAMAYAN TEWARI. 4 Pat. It is duty of the Court to appoint a guardian-ad-litem for a minor defendant under O. 32, R. 2, C.P.C. No person can be appointed guardian without his consent. At the same time where the court has given sanction and approval for the appearance of a person as guardian, the absence of formal order of appointment is not always fatal to the proceedings. A mere irregularity in the appointment of a guardian-ad-litem will not render the decree passed against the minor null and void, unless it is proved that the minor's interest have suffered thereby. At the same time where no notice or summons is served on the guardian of the minor, and no order was made appointing a guardian for the minor and there was no appearance by the so-called guardian at any stage of the proceedings, a decree passed against the minor is not binding on him. 26 C.L.J. 253; 37 A. 179; 20 C.L.J. 469; 2 P.L.T. 617 Relied on. In the absence of the father, the mother is the natural guardian of minor irrespective of the family being joint or separate. Notice under O. 32, R. 3 (4) for the appointment of a guardian ad-litem must be served upon the natural guardian. If a guardian ad-litem is guilty of negligence and makes no attempt to protect the minor's interests the decree passed in the suit will not be binding on the minor. Where a decree which cannot be split up is set aside on the ground of fraud at the instance of one of the defts. the entire decree must be set aside. (Jwala Prasad, J.) Where an officer of Court is appointed as guardian ad-litem of a minor deft. due notice of such appointment should be given to that officer and the suit should not be dismissed on the mere ground that process fees are not paid for the issue of summons on him. The father of certain minor defendants in a suit refused to be their guardian ad litem and thereupon the Head Clerk of the Court was appointed guardian. The plaintiff was a stranger who was not aware of the existence of any other relatives of the minors. There was no affidavit by him that there was no other person fit and willing to act as guardian of the minors. There was also no distinct notice to the father of the minors of the appointment of an officer of the Court as guardian ad litem but the father himself did not adduce any evidence and the suit was decreed. Subsequently the minor sued to set aside the decree on the grounds that they were not validly represented in the prior suit and that their guardian ad litem was grossly negligent in the conduct of the case. Held, that the defects, if any, in the appointment of the guardian did not vitiate the decree. 32 A. 287; 20 M.L.J. 591 (P.C.); 31 A. 572; 19 M.L.J. 631 (P.C.), referred to. Held, further, that in the absence of proof that the guardian ad litem could have adduced any useful evidence or was aware of such evidence being available, his omission to let in evidence in the prior suit did not constitute negligence or fraud. A compromise of suit made on behalf of a minor without strict compliance with the provisions of S. 462 of the C.P. Code of 1882 (O. 32, R. 7) is not enforceable against the minor. A mortgage given by a trustee in pursuance of a compromise in a suit in which he was the guardian ad litem of a minor, without the sanction of the Court, is invalid on that very ground though supportable as a proper act on the part of the trustee. Where in a compromise on a suit some facts, likely to affect minor's benefit are kept away from Court's notice, the minor cannot be said to be bound by the compromise. In order to attract the provisions of O. 32, R. 7, C. P. No particular formula is necessary to be used by the Court in order to grant the leave and when it is shown that an application was made by the guardian to the Court asking for leave to enter into the compromise and the Court makes a note of that application and passes a decree in terms of that compromise, it must be held that the leave of the Court was expressly recorded within the meaning of O. 32, R. 7, C. P. Code, (28 A. 595, Ref.) Even if the leave of the Court is not expressly recorded that would not make the decree a nullity. ———O. 32, R 7—Reference to arbitration. Suit against firm—Minor.

Though one member of firm is minor sanction of Court is not necessary to refer a suit against that firm to arbitration. (Harrison, J.) SUKHANAND v. BEHARI RAM.
1923 Lah 103.

———O. 32, R. 7—Reference to arbitration—Benefit to minor—Court, duty of.

Where the guardian of a minor party to a suit wishes to refer the matter to arbitration. the Court ought to fully apply its mind to the matter and consider the circumstances of the case and see if the reference would be for the minor's benefit. Where it accords sanction to the reference without any valid reason the reference is bad and the whole proceeding is vitiated (Abdul Raoof, J.) MT. BHAKTAWAR v. KESAR SING, GURDIT SINGH.

———O 32, R. 7 and Sch II, Para 1—Reference to arbitration - Next friend of minor—Leave of Court—Ratification.

An application of the next friend of a minor under Sch. II, Para. 1, C.P. Code comes within O. 32, R. 7 of the Code. Unless the leave of the Court is expressly obtained and recorded, the application will have the same effect and be open to the same objection as would any other agreement or compromise entered into by such guardian or next friend witnout the leave of the Court. Where, however, the minor on attaining majority ratifies the proceedings he cannot attack the awards as being void against him. 95 P. R. 1912, Foll.; 39 Mad. 1031, Ref. ———O 32, R. 7—Reference to arbitration

An agreement to refer matters to arbitration through Court cannot be challenged on the grounds of the parties being minors, and of the sanction of the Court being not obtained under O. 32, R. 7. (Reid, C.J.) BUDH SINGH v. RAM NATH. 251 P.W.R, 1912=17 I.C. 388=128 P.R. 1912.

———O. 32, R. 7 and Ss. 462 and 506 (1882)—Reference to arbitration.

To safeguard the interest of a minor, the Legislature have imposed upon the Court the quasi tutelary responsibilities under O. 32, R 7. The application to refer a question to arbitration is an 'agreement' within the meaning of O. 32, R 7 because the rule has reference to the suit. Hence for the validity of such reference for all purposes and against all parties including minor, previous sanction and its express record by the Court, must be obtained under Sch. 2, Para. 1, lest the whole of the proceedings will be voidable as against all others except the minor as in the cases of other agreements or compromises. It is an open question whether the minor's guardian-ad litem's or next friend's binding by oath the other party

——O. 32, R 15—Lunatic—Right to sue in his own name.

There is no established rule of practice requiring that suits relating to a lunatic's property should be brought by the lunatic's manager and not by himself. On the contrary the C. P. Though it is true that a person so incapacitated has to sue by a next friend, but a next friend is not a party and the absence of a next friend is immaterial. (Jenkins, C.J. *and N. R. Therefore a sale of a lunatic's property in execution of a decree passed against him in a suit in which he was not represented by a guardian ad litem is a nullity and the lunatic can resist an action for possession without setting aside the sale. 32 Cal. 296; 32 I. ———O. 33, R. 9—Concealment of property—Asset of doubtful value—Insurance policy.

A plff. was given leave to sue in forma pauperis in a case where otherwise he would have had to pay a Court-fee of over Rs. 500. Subsequently pending the suit the Court found that he had omitted to state in his list of assets an insurance policy whose then value was Rs. 245. Thereupon the Court dispaupered the plff, asked him to pay the full Court-fee and on his failure to do so, dismissed the suit. Held, in revision that even assuming that concealment of property in a particular case might amount to improper conduct, which by itself, would entitle the Court to dispauper a plff. under O. 33, R 9, the facts which came to light in this case only demanded a further scrutiny by the Court to ascertain whether the plff. had means, so that he ought not to be allowed to continue the suit as a pauper. If that scrutiny had been made, it would have been discovered that plff was still unable to pay the Court-fees. (Macleod C.J. and Coyajee, J.) SHANKARABHAT v. SHANKARABHAT. 24 Bom. After the plff. was allowed to sue as pauper she applied in the Court for ad interim maintenance at the rate of Rs. 3,000 per month. The Court allowed her a maintenance of Rs. 200 a month during the pendency of the litigation, a petition was then filed on behalf of Government under O. 33, R 9 (b) to dispauper the plff. upon the ground that by reason of her having received the sum of Rs. 5, 538 as arrears and of her being allowed to receive in future Rs. 200 per month as her maintenance allowance, she had ceased to be a pauper and consequently she ought not to be allowed to continue the prosecution of her suit as a pauper. Held, that she was not liable to be dispaupered. The fact that she was living with her cousin a Vakil who probably was supporting her and carrying on the litigation on her behalf and also that she had appeared before the Court through eminent counsel are immaterial especially when there is nothing to show under what arrangement the learned Counsel appeared for her in the Court and there is no affidavit to show that she had incurred an expense on account of the aforesaid counsel, or that her cousin was financing her, either in supporting her or in defraying the cost of the litigation. A suit in forma pauperis by a wife for her dower was decreed with costs against her husband but dismissed as against his co-deft. and mortgagee, in so far as the wife claimed a prior charge for dower over the mortgage. The Court-fee payable to Government was declared a first charge on the amount decreed to plff. The Government purported to attach and sell the property in execution of the decree for pauper fees. Held, that the attachment and sale of the deft.'s property in execution of the decree against plff. was without jurisdiction and passed no title to the purchaser. ——O. 34, R. 1—Puisne mortgagee—Sale in suit by a prior mortgagee—Puisne mortgagee not impleaded—Redemption by puisne mortgagee—Interest on prior mortgage—Purchaser—Rights of.

A mortgagee who sues for foreclosure of the equity of redemption or for sale of the secured properties, if he succeeds, gets that title of the mortgagor as it stood at the date of the mortgage, or transfers the title to the purchaser free from all interests or liens subsequently created by the mortgagor, provided he makes the owners of such interests or liens parties to the suit. But if he omits to make any of them parties their rights or liabilities are not affected but the purchaser would acquire the rights in the mortgaged property of all the persons who were parties just as if he had obtained an assignment from all of them without however a merger of the interest or the extinction of the lien. Hence if the owner of the equity of redemption is a party to the suit but a puisne incumbrancer is not the purchaser becomes the assignee of the mortgage sued on as well as the transferee of the equity of redemption subject to the mesne mortgage, and if the purchaser obtains possession on sale from the owner, he must account for profits at least in cases where the price he pays is not more than sufficient to

There is nothing in law to prevent the prior mortgagee from bringing a suit to enforce his mortgage without impleading the subsequent mortgagee. There is, however, some risk, and probably the curtailment of some of the rights of the mortgagee who chooses to sue separately upon his mortgages; he may not be allowed to sell the properties in the subsequent decree when they were already sold in prior decree. O. 34, R. 1, C.P. Code is subject to the provisions of O. 1, R. 9, C.P. Code and the combined effect of these rules as regards mortgages is that all persons whose rights may be adjudicated upon and determined in the suit ought to be added as parties but that failure to add one or more such persons should not have the effect of defeating the suit. The Court in their absence can deal with the matters in controversy so far as regards the rights and interests of the parties actually before it. A suit by a prior mortgagee without impleading the puisne mortgagee is not unsustainable though the puisne mortgagee is a proper party. The omission to implead the puisne mortgagee as a party to the suit within limitation does not involve a dismissal of the suit. 13 A. 432; 18 C. 164, Ref. (Miller, C.J. and Mullick, J.) Costs.

In a mortgage suit it is open to a Court of appeal to direct that such costs as it may award against the unsuccessful appellant may be recoverable from him personally, but if there is no such express direction the costs are, as a matter of ordinary practice sanctioned by O. 34, Rr. 2, 4 and 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure added to the mortgage money and are in the first instance recoverable from the mortgaged property after the decree is made final. An appeal lies from a preliminary decree for foreclosure directing the recovery of the costs of the suit from the mortgagor. In a suit for foreclosure a Court may pass a decree directing that the costs of the suit should be recovered personally from the mortgagor, if there is a condition to that effect in the mortgage deed. The first mortgagee brought a foreclosure suit on his mortgage joining the mortgagors and the puisne mortgagee as defts. and obtained a preliminary decree. He then applied for a decree absolute, but did not join the puisne mortgagee to the proceedings and obtained a decree absolute against the mortgagors. The puisne mortgagee objected and was allowed to deposit the decretal amount. The first mortgagee then tried to redeem the puisne mortgagee on the strength of his decree absolute against the mortgagors. The decree being joint and indivisible the first mortgagee's claim was held to be fully satisfied by the puisne mortgagee's deposit and the puisne mortgagees got all the rights of the first mortgagee. If the defendant fails to do the needful during the time thus granted, the court will pass final decree.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O. 34, R. 4—Nature of Proceedings.

When the plaintiff applies for the final decree the defendant will not be allowed to do what he has failed to do during the time granted by the preliminary decree unless he shows good cause. The section does not expressly provide for the issue of notice to the defendants' mortgagors, yet an ex parte decree in such a case is liable to be set aside. (Hallifax, A. J. C.) ANNAJI v. FAKIRA. 1922 Nag. 175.

——O 34, Rr. 4 and 5—Nature of proceedings—Preliminary decree—Proceeding subsequent, nature of.

Proceedings following the preliminary decree in a mortgage suit are proceedings in the suit and not in execution and must be between the parties to the preliminary decree or their representatives in interest. (Mitra, A. J. C.) RAGHUNATH v. SHEO LAL. 39 I.C. 849 = 13 N.L.R. 69.

——O. 34, Rr. 4 and 5—Nature of proceedings—Mortgage suit pending.

A mortgage suit is deemed to be pending at any time until a final decree is passed. (Drake Brockman, J. C.) DIGAMBARA v. GANPAT. 33 I.C. 496 = 12 N.L.R. 50.

—— O. 34, Rr. 4 and 5—Nature of proceedings—Proceedings for final decree—Nature of—Death of defendant.

A final decree against a mortgagor dead at the time is void and incapable of execution. The stage of suit continues up to the final decree. (Miller, C.J., Coutts and Manuk, JJ.) JUNGLI LAL v. LADHU RAM MARWARI. 4 Pat. L.J. 240 = 50 I.C. 529 = (1919) Pat. 105 (F.B.).

Payment into Court.

——O. 34, R. 4—Payment into Court—Conditional decree—Money on prior mortgage to be paid before sale.

When the decree in a mortgage suit provides for the payment of a prior mortgage before sale of the mortgaged property, but does not specify the date of payment, the payment should be made within six months of the date of the decree. (Banerji and Gokul Prasad, JJ.) GAYAN SINGH v. ATA HUSSAIN. 43 All. 320 = 60 I.C. 817 = 19 A.L.J. 83.

——O. 34, Rr. 4 and 5—Payment into Court—Partial payment—Preliminary and final decree—Deposit.

The doctrine that a mortgagee is not bound to accept any sum in part of satisfaction of his decree and is entitled to an order absolute unless the entire amount specified payable to him, is not applicable where there is controversy as to what is due and the payment is made in accordance with the determination of the Court at the time as to the amount payable by the mortgagor to the mortgagee. 14 C.W.N. 617, Ref. If a mortgagor pays into Court the amount determined to be due, it is a good tender though it may be finally adjudged that a larger sum is due from the mortgagor to the mortgagee. (Mookerjee and Carnduff, JJ.) HARI KISHEN BHAGAT v. KAMLESHUR PRASAD SINGH. 16 I.C. 374.

C. P. CODE (V of 1908), O 34, R. 5—Consent Decree.

——O. 34, Rr. 4 and 5—"Payment into Court"—Mortgage—Compromise decree—Payment out of the Court—Final decree.

It is open to the parties to a mortgage suit to arrange among themselves as to the terms and form of the mortgage decree and they will be bound by such terms unless they are opposed to public policy. Where after the passing of such a compromise decree the mortgagee decree-holder applies for a final decree on the allegation that the judgment-debtor had defaulted in the payment of two instalments under the decree, it is open to the judgment-debtor to show that the payment had been made out of the Court and a decree for the balance alone should be passed. Even if O. 34, R. 5 of the C. P. Code applied to the case, the Court could take into account payments by the judgment-debtor out of Court for the purpose of determining the amount to be entered in the final decree. (Jwala Prasad and Adami, JJ.) MANGAR SAHU v. BHATOO SINGH. 1 P L.T. 416 = 57 I.C. 473 = 5 Pat. L J. 672.

Consent Decree.

——O. 34, R. 5—Consent decree—Payment out of Court.

O. 34, R. 5, C. P. Code, does not apply to mortgage decrees based on a compromise arrived at between the parties and there is nothing in law which prohibits the payment of a compromise decree out of Court. 57 I.
